OFFER AGAIN IS REJECTED BY BRITISH

Mr. Snowden Refuses Further Suggestion for Settlement of Claims of British Government

WILL CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS

THE HAGUE, Aug. 26.—(H. 1930). Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, today told the representatives of France, Italy, Belgium and Japan, that the new offer on division of reparations did not satisfy the British claims, but he said he would remain here in case they desired to discuss them further.

Before his answer was made it was semi-officially said in French circles that the four creditor Powers had made their last concession to the British, but late this afternoon Ambassador Adachi, the Japanese delegate, called on the Chancellor to find out how negotiations might be continued.

Mr. Snowden, in rejecting the offer, said that it was the equivalent of only 37 per cent of the amount Britain claimed as her share and not 75 per cent, as claimed.

Mr. Snowden pointed out that while its money value on the basis of 5-1-2 per cent discount would be equivalent to 38,000,000 marks, if Germans had not given their consent to the disposal of surplus payments over the Young plan between April and September, which the creditors counted on as provide 14,400,000 marks of this sum.

GOVERNOR IS SANGUINE OF PROSPERITY

Head of Hudson's Bay Company Is Visitor Here, Inspecting Interests in Victoria

SURVEY IN PROGRESS OF LAND HOLDINGS

Expects Residential Property Held by Historic Organization Will Find Buyers as City Develops

"THE extension of the department store here, I think, is the best evidence of the confidence in the future prosperity of Victoria," said Mr. Charles V. Sale, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, in a chat with The Colonist representative yesterday, on the occasion of his inspection visit with Mr. George W. Allan, chairman of the Canadian Committee and other officials.

Mr. Sale pointed out that the company felt that the expansion of the city and district warranted the increased facilities at the store, and as soon as possible the extra accommodation would be brought into use, giving the public increased service.

In answer to a question on the company's policy with regard to its downtown business property, part of the Fort estate, Mr. Sale said that it had twice been considered with a view to building operations, but that the time was not considered ripe for action. Probably as the city developed such a course would be entered as the property was well suited for stores and offices.

RESIDENTIAL SITES

That question, he pointed out, was closely bound up with the problem of its residential estate. They had not sold as readily as expected, but there was a great deal of desirable property around Victoria subdivided for selection by people desiring home sites, and it was to be expected that the Hudson's Bay company lands would have to wait their chance. The company, however, was not neglectful of this phase of its interests in the Victoria neighborhood, and a survey was in progress to grade the unsold holdings.

Province Offers Aid to Great Wheat Congress

The Province of British Columbia will co-operate with the Prairie provinces in the matter of lending assistance to make the Wheat Week Congress a successful. It will be held in Regina in the second week in June. During the visit of Mr. J. A. Maxwell, minister of agriculture, last week, the matter was taken up by Mr. Mooney, who is deeply interested in the project, with the Minister of Agriculture, who stated that the province should lend every assistance.

It is therefore proposed that a committee shall be formed in the province on which will be represented the Department of Agriculture, the University of British Columbia, the Grain Growers, and other bodies, which will have in hand the arousing of interest in the Congress. It is being held in British Columbia is well represented at the gathering, and in the exhibits to form part of the gathering.

MINISTER TO STUDY PLANS OF TRAINING

Hon. J. Hinchliffe Proposes to Scrutinize Problems of Educational Taxation

PART OF POLICY OF REVISION

In the course of his investigation into the incidence of school taxation, with a view to a wider and more equitable distribution through legislation which will be brought down next session, Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, will leave for Eastern Canada on September 4. He will be absent from the province for three weeks, during which he will visit Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Quebec and Edmonton.

At each of these provincial capitals he will interview the Ministers of Education and the Premiers Ministers in regard to the problem of educational taxation. He will ascertain their views on amendments to the existing methods of raising money for school purposes and generally inform himself not only on the systems in the provinces concerned, but on what is the official opinion on how reforms could be instituted.

This trip East by Mr. Hinchliffe is a part of his policy of exploring all possible avenues dealing with school taxation before effecting any reform in this province. He has already visited a number of municipalities and districts in British Columbia for the purpose of interviewing school authorities, and everywhere he has found opinion to be in favor of a more equitable distribution of the school tax, the burden of which is at present practically altogether laid on the land of the province.

TWO KILLED AS TRAIN HITS CAR

BARRIE, Ont., Aug. 26.—Two persons were killed and one seriously injured when a Canadian National Railway train from Allandale to Hamilton struck a motor car at a level crossing in Innisfil, about 10 miles south of here, Saturday. George W. Holmes, forty-five, Toronto was killed and his wife, Jennie Holmes, forty-five, Toronto injured and died soon afterward. Vera English, fourteen, Toronto, was severely injured.

IMPRISONED BUT ESCAPED ALIVE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 26.—George Feet, twenty-nine, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, spent a thirty-foot well on his farm since Saturday afternoon, was liberated alive today. Rock and earth from the sides of a well caved in Saturday shortly after the farmer had descended into its depths to dig it deeper. Subsequent slides prolonged his imprisonment.

Fruit Orchards Dwindling And Industry Is Injured By Invasion of Monopoly

CRANBROOK, Aug. 26.—A note of warning against the danger of invasion of Canadian markets by monopolies was sounded here today by Hon. R. R. Bennett, Conservative leader. "Whenever you have destroyed a monopoly you have lives in the hands of a monopoly," he declared, "you will have to pay the price of the monopoly first."

Mr. Bennett stated that our fruit orchards were dwindling as a result of the unequal competition from the United States being dumped into Canada, and that the prices of products were about to ripen. He recalled visiting a fruit district and witnessing "men and women struggling with adversity," trying to develop a fruit industry.

By "a single stroke of the pen," the Government could assist these people by passing an order-in-council putting the dumping enactments into effect. "I have challenged the Government to invoke the dumping provisions, but it has not done so, the Opposition leader exclaimed.

DUMPING PROVISION

The dumping provision had been on the statute books of Canada since 1921, but the necessary order-in-council to make the provisions operative was not passed until the Conservatives were in office for a short time in 1926. The Liberal Government was returned and the order-in-council was allowed to remain in effect until the Spring of 1928. Then, Mr. Bennett declared, at the behest of Mr. Young, of Weyburn, it was repealed.

The dumping provisions were now imperative. "What is the use?" the Opposition leader exclaimed.

FIRE HAZARD IMPROVES IN B.C. FORESTS

Blaze in Kootenay Is Lessened Although Dense Pall of Smoke Overhangs the Whole District

GRAVE SITUATION IN MANITOBA YET

Lack of Rain Cause of Serious Further Outbreaks Involving Much Valuable Property

NELSON, B.C., Aug. 26.—The fire situation in the Southern Interior, according to Local Forest Branch officials is vastly improved, although the country is shrouded in a dense pall of smoke.

The fire on Kootenay Lake is still burning, but not to the extent it was a week ago.

Dry hot weather continues throughout.

IN TURNER VALLEY

CALGARY, Aug. 26. — Present cloudy weather conditions will prove an invaluable aid in fighting the bad forest fires west of Turner Valley, according to a statement made today by J. A. Hutchison, supervisor of the Bow River forest reserve.

No rain of any value was reported to have fallen over the week-end, but things appeared considerably more hopeful with the coming of the damper atmosphere. It was decided that no immediate danger exists for the Turner Valley oil fields. The case of emergency in fire fighting brigade has been organized in Turner Valley.

LAND DROUGHT STRICKEN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—Drought stricken both land and prairie in Manitoba is raised tonight by the forest dangerous set of fires that have attacked the province in years.

With practically no rain for over a month, and weather forecasts pointing to a continuance of the dry spell, conflagrations are steadily making inroads in some of the most valuable timber lands, especially in the district north of Lac du Bonnett and the Deadduy River area.

Hundreds of volunteers are assisting forest rangers to quell the widespread menace, but the fire threat will not be vanquished without rain, according to officials of the Forestry Department.

SITUATION CRITICAL

In a statement officials of the Forestry department spoke of the situation as critical. The department had made an appeal to all residents of the province to help in reducing the fire hazard by putting out any small fires seen smouldering along trails, roads or fields.

"Many fires are surrounded on all sides by a series of small fires left by hunters," said officials of the department. "Mr. James, Tuxedo and Charles Street, are asked to call out men to put the fires under control.

There Will Be No Dumping Of British Unemployed in Canada, Says Mr. Thomas

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Aug. 26.—"Some people think I came here to solve the British unemployment problem by dumping labor into Canada. They don't know me. I realize as well as you do that your country cannot be exploited. I endorse your policy absolutely," said Right. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Unemployment in the Labor Government of Great Britain, addressing the Trades and Labor Congress here today.

"I'll tell you now," he said, "that of all the proposals I have made, there is not one that will cost you a dollar. I ask in favor. All my proposals are to ask that those of you who agree to be given a chance to hold up their heads. It is easy for politicians to come here and tell you how good you are. From contributions I may begin to believe that you are the only peoples on the beach. But I'd like to point out that for every pound you spend on us, you spend five pounds with other people.

WORK NOT CHARITY

"I want you to substitute work for charity and give my people who are the most fiery and impassioned speeches ever heard here, stated definitely and absolutely that it had no intention of dumping British labor into Canada.

CANADA HAS HIGH PLACE IN NATIONS

Voice of Pessimist Has Been Silenced, Says British Ex-Chancellor, and Progress Is Assured

GREAT TRIBUTE TO DOMINION

CALGARY, Aug. 26.—The second great movement in the history of Victoria, the trek to the Northlands, grounds of economic wealth which had already been glimpsed by Calgary situated in the heart of one of the great Empire industries, and finally the significance of the British Empire, its guarantee of permanence, its economic independence and the wealth of tradition in which the sentiment of Empire had its roots, today formed the chief theme of the address of the Right Hon. Winston Churchill before one of the most representative and enthusiastic audiences which Calgary has ever known.

CANADA'S BRIGHT FUTURE

"Thirty years ago men traced the geographical formation of Canada on the map," he said, "pointed out her enormous areas of land and her small population, and said that a country of this size could not endure and progress under those conditions. Today, thirty years later, the voice of the pessimist has been silenced. With her agricultural and mineral wealth and her great northland only partially developed, Canada has taken her place among the nations of the world and her march of progress will go on."

This tribute to the Dominion of Canada, spoken by Mr. Churchill, brought a wild outburst of applause from the 700 persons who attended the luncheon held in his honor here today.

The famous British visitor also paid a great tribute to Canada's war ...

Attack of Arabs Against Jews Has Now Assumed Character of Racial War in Palestine

BRITISH TROOPS PREPARE TO ACT

London Believes That With Forces Now on Hand, Rioting Will Soon Be Brought Under Control

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 26.—Unconfirmed reports from Jerusalem described the situation this evening as extremely grave, notwithstanding the presence of a larger number of British troops and marines in the country.

Isaac Ben-Zvi, Jewish labor leader, tonight telegraphed that the attacks spread all over the country in the north and south and in the valley of Jezreel and Haifa, in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. Many are reported killed and wounded. "Many from among us have been killed. Our arms have been taken away by the authorities, but not from the Arabs," Mr. Ben-Zvi stated. "The riots continue in Haifa."

Advices received from the Van Hai, the Jewish committee board of Jerusalem, were that Arab attacks on the Jerusalem Jewish quarters, Machnes Yehudah and Shearim Chasec, were in progress. The board said the number of Jewish dead ranged between 120 and 150.

Five Jews were killed today. At 3 p.m. a member of the Jewish party Van Hai'r telephoned a message that attacks on Arabs in Jerusalem come continuously from different positions.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 26.—British troops and marines have been landed at Palestine, but the attacks of the Moslem Arabs against the Jewish population of Palestine have assumed the character of a racial war. The numbers of the dead and injured mount hourly. More than 100 Jews have been killed. The number of the Arab dead cannot yet be ascertained.

Liquor Exports Of Canada Into U.S. Are Lower

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—A decrease of 285,740 gallons of liquor exported from Canada in July as compared with July last year, was shown today by figures made public by Assistant-Secretary Lowman. The figures given were obtained from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa and cover exports from the ports of entry from the entire Dominion of Canada. The decrease in liquor exports from Canada, says Mr. Lowman, has been continuous since early Summer when the Treasury Department inaugurated its intensive drive to prevent smuggling of liquor from Canada to the United States. Last year more than one million gallons of whisky alone were exported from Canada to points in this country.

In addition to reporting that the council was criminally conceived and operated in contravention, the report states that persons named in it were parties to the criminal character of the organization, the newspaper says.

Men Who Claim to Be Stranded at Toronto Threaten to Use Violence to Get Deported

LAY BLAME UPON RAIL COMPANIES

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—A band of twenty immigrants who claim they have been stranded in Toronto with no food or money, are going to return to "window smashing" in order to be deported.

"We are not going to stick it in Canada, Guess I'll be back," said a Flynn, of Lancashire, who acted as spokesman for the attendant at the paper reporter. "We have been told the only way to get back is to break a window. We are going to break windows."

Flynn said he was told and complained that he had been brought out with thousands of other Britons by a railway company with a guarantee of three years' railway work. He said he was sent to various farms on the Prairies, but after a few weeks found himself in the Winnipeg Immigration Hall without food.

"Now the railways won't have anything to do with us. We are dazed. I am going to leave this bunch in the immigration hall and there's going to be trouble."

There Will Be No Dumping Of British Unemployed in Canada, Says Mr. Thomas

"The Labor Government realizes that it is a Government not only for one country, but for the whole British Empire. It is far from its wishes to solve our problem by giving you people in Canada a still harder problem to face.

"Ignore those who point out the short cut for you to follow," Mr. Thomas continued. "It results only in revolution, war pains and strife that result in absolutely nothing.

"The greater your power, the greater your responsibility. But power becomes a danger when it is prostituted. What is our ideal? We are saying to the world 'follow us and help us to put into practice the gospel of peace.'

"Who could have lived through the terrible years of the war without hoping and praying for peace?" he asked. "The working class of all countries may be maligned for a time, but they finally ask of their leaders: 'Have you delivered the goods?' That ends that. When you start preparing for war in time of peace you usually get what you are looking for. That is why Ramsay Donald is on record as standing for reduction of armaments.

"The British Commonwealth of Nations is something more than a phrase," the speaker said. "It is not only the foundation but also the bulwark of the nation.

"Up to the present the known casualties include forty-five Jews killed, while fifty-nine Jews were seriously wounded. Minor casualties were eight killed and ten wounded.

"The town is now reported quiet, but 440 Jews have been temporarily accommodated in police barracks.

"Nablus remained uneasy, but outbreaks there so far have been averted. Safad is very uneasy. Jaffa and Beersheba are quiet, but tentative.

PROCLAMATION IS ISSUED

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The Acting High Commissioner for Palestine issued the following proclamation Sunday:

"I give notice to the public of Palestine that His Majesty's forces are operating in the country with the sole object of quelling the present disturbances and preventing their storing order. Exceptional measures of repression will be adopted as soon as possible, but troops will not hesitate to use force against any disturbance of the peace, without distinction.

The 776-foot Zeppelin came into Los Angeles from the San Fernando Valley, sailing at an altitude of about 1,000 feet.

FIGHTING IS SERIOUS AND DEATHS MANY

New attacks were made here today where the British military reinforcements were rushed in large numbers, and in other Palestine centres. The Jewish Nationalist Zion, near Jerusalem, was attacked by Arabs.

The city is full of refugees from the suburbs and the colonies. There is a scarcity of medical supplies and food. Looting was going on. Hospital records have showed eighty dead, of whom fifty-nine were Jews. Two hundred and thirty-three injured persons were recorded. Reports reaching here this morning show that the warfare is extending throughout the country.

GRAVE SITUATION

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The situation in Palestine, where Arabs and Jews have engaged in serious religious warfare for several days, had become somewhat quiet, according to reports today. Officials believe that now that the British land and sea forces had arrived the authorities would speedily have the situation under control. The Colonial Office tonight issued a statement admitting the extreme gravity of events and confirming the killing of forty-five Jews and seriously wounding of fifty-nine at Hebron. Their statement was based on a report from the Acting High Commissioner at Palestine, which did not extend beyond the occurrences early Sunday morning, however.

Looting and fighting still went on in the suburbs of Jerusalem, although the city itself was comparatively quiet. The contagion of violence had spread to other cities.

Premier Baldwin continued to consult those competent to advise the Government on its Palestine position. Today it was the turn of Viscount Cecil, the British statesman who is, perhaps, best versed in League of Nations affairs, and who will be a delegate to the Assembly next week.

REPORT UNCONFIRMED

There has been no confirmation of reports that Lord Reading, a distinguished Jew who has filled important Government posts, would shortly lead a special mission to Palestine to seek solution of the age-old race problem. The task of the British Government is not lessened by the fact that there is a considerable body of opinion opposed to the idea of the mandatory power trying to establish a national home for Jews in Palestine.

Under its mandate from the League of Nations the British Government is bound to uphold complete freedom of conscience and free exercise of all forms of religious worship. The conflicting claims of Moslem and Jew developing on the "Wailing Wall" are of long standing and have been brought to the League of Nations, but have never been settled. The wall itself belongs to the Jews and has been used as a place of worship for centuries, but the pavement fronting the wall and the ground are Arab property. The Arabs have refused to sell the pavement and site.

Complaints have been made here that the late Conservative Government, through neglect to take the situation seriously in hand, planted the seeds of the present trouble. The attitude of the British Government has been that the site of the Wailing Wall is undoubtedly Moslem property and that the Jews have only a perspective right of access.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The British Colonial Office today issued the following communique relating to the situation in Palestine. Summarizing the position, the Acting High Commissioner states that the old city of Jerusalem was then quiet, but there was still some desultory firing and incendiarism in the new quarters. "The situation in the Jewish outlying quarters and suburbs of Jerusalem was not yet under control and there was still some looting with occasions.

the province of Alberta, he referred to Alberta's oil and mineral wealth and said that he was pleased and surprised by the immense developments which was being undertaken in Turner Valley.

EMPIRE INTERESTS

From Canada Mr. Churchill reverted back to conditions affecting Great Britain. If the Commonwealth parts of the British Empire continued along their individual paths of development on a basis of equality and co-operation, nobody heartedly but voluntarily, to protect the interests and interests of Great Britain, there was nothing to fear for the future of the Empire. Mr. Churchill maintained. The Old Land, he said, instead of declining and sliding back as some thought, was marching steadily onward, and under the new accepted constitution the British Dominions could and were doing their bit in upholding the proud ideals of the Motherland.

He extolled the doctrine of equality and declared that the ideals and accomplishments of the British Empire were a source of annoyance and wonder to some foreign nations.

"Before My Baby Was Born"

"I was in very poor health before my baby was born and had no appetite and was losing every day. People said I would never carry my baby as I was so weak. My mother-in-law advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped me wonderfully. My baby is now very big but he is strong and healthy. I recommend the Compound to every woman I hear complaining as I did. I feel weak I take it again myself. Everybody says she never saw so looking better. I will be glad to answer letters if I can help other women to be strong and healthy again."—Mrs. William Hardy, 26 Queen Street, Lindsay, Ontario.

according to their future possibilities.

Mr. Sale said he was pleased to find the Government in general conditions here since his last visit, and to observe a definite spirit of optimism.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The governor referred to his annual statement to the General Court of Governors, held in London, June 28, as stating the general situation in the country. The statement appeared in The Colonist on July 14, and he did not think there was much to add to it.

On migration Mr. Sale then said: "There is without doubt plenty of room in Canada for men who commence with a willingness to work and a peaceable disposition, and it will interest you to know that the great majority of farmers who apply to us for helpers express preference for men of the British race. This, I think, disposes of the fallacy that British soldiers are not wanted in Canada.

"Much has been said about the influx of settlers of other nationalities. As to these, let us not forget that they have taken the opportunity and occupied the land which our agents to our own people, and that thereby they have enriched the commonwealth. But Canada being a British Dominion with its heritage of language, law and ordered liberty—its laws valued by the people of other races but by our own—desires to maintain these traditions. It is in meeting this desire that the Hudson's Bay Company Overseas Settlement Ltd. is taking its share."

Mr. Sale expects to return to Canada either late this year or early in 1930. He son, Mr. George S. Sale, will pass through here early in October to be confirmed in the Institute of Pacific Relations to be held at Kyoto, Japan, from October 28 to November 8, accompanied by Mrs. Sale.

The governor's party left for Vancouver last evening.

To Inquire How Europe Regards Protein Grade

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—Dr. R. Newton, professor of field crops at the University of Saskatoon, has been asked by the National Research Council of Canada to make an investigation of the possible reception which would be given in Europe to a system of marketing wheat on a protein basis on the continent. The report will be prepared for the next session of the Parliament.

The suggestion that such investigation be undertaken was made by the agricultural committee of the House of Commons last session. The announcement that the work would be done by Dr. Newton was made today by Dr. H. Torey as a session of the Council of the Research Council here today. The report on grading of wheat by protein content, published by the Research Council for the committee, was approved.

"This is certainly a good report you've given me, old fellow."

"I'll bet I've gone and given you the wrong one."

MOVE IS MADE FOR AIRFIELD IN DISTRICT

Alderman Ainsworth said it was hardly necessary to say anything in support of his motion, but there were several considerations to take into account. The object of the resolution was to remedy the condition of Victoria from the Mainland. It would be remedied by many that in connection with the proposal of the C.P.R. the Fathers of Confederation did their utmost to keep the Island in contact with the Mainland. The Second Narrows bridge was then proposed to be carried out in some form or other, and the E. & N. Railway was part of the compromise by which Confederation was carried in this province. Telegraph and telephone cables to the Island had all been in the end of remedying this isolation.

OTHER MUNICIPALITIES

Private capital, he said, seemed to be chary, or, perhaps, was cautious. But that should not deter them from making some provision for the great and growing enterprise. He was pleased to hear from him that it would be very desirable to secure the co-operation of the sister municipalities. He did not think had any any sort of land they could reasonably offer within the city limits, and he considered it exceedingly advisable, before they proceeded too far, to ask other municipalities to enter into a conference, not binding them in any way, but with the object of getting their views and co-operation.

A friend had suggested to him several considerations that he fully endorsed. Victoria had opportunities for a terminal, but they all realized that action must be taken if it is to be taken. Location must be carefully considered, and radio, telephone connection, wireless in touch with the weather bureau and so on. A beginning was immediately necessary in order to link up the area with Victoria. It was time, and unless they took steps to establish a landing place they would be left in the cold and would shut the door to a great opportunity, which would have destroying isolation. They must do their part.

Alderman Litchfield seconded Alderman Marchant's motion, first, he said, because to get the surrounding municipalities together on the matter could only have a good result. If it was to be a success it must have the co-operation of the municipalities. It was necessary for the city to take the lead in the venture of necessary funds to carry the matter through. Aviation in the air was as revolutionary on the continent as the first use of the ground.

WHAT IS PROPOSED?

Mayor Ancomb asked for information as to just exactly what it was he was asked to do. Alderman Marchant said he wanted all members of other municipalities to be called to the conference.

The Mayor said he could clear the air with regard to a seaplane base, as he considered that idea dead, was well under way. As soon as he got the plans he would place them before the council. He thought that some oil company would take up the matter. In regard to the other matter he was perfectly willing to call a conference, but not a conference of half a dozen men. The thing it was quite certain that such a number could not be got together.

Alderman Shrubb said that if they were perhaps going a little ahead of themselves in the call and assembled, a conference of thirty people would be, and would be likely to get nowhere. He would recommend the calling of a conference through which they would ascertain what the feeling on the matter be referred to the inquiry committee for consideration and report. A motion to this effect was carried unanimously.

Fruit Orchards Dwindling And Industry Is Injured By Invasion of Monopoly

Opposition leader asking if having in Government's fruit pats ears and has not the courage to enforce them, "Better to have no law at all" The Government, he continued, was now debarred from restoring the order-in-council by the necessity of having the support of those who are "No."

Dealing with Canada's total imports of fruit last year, Mr. Bennett said, there had 1,000,000 boxes apples, $600,000 of peaches, $1,000,000 of pears, $600,000 of plums and $1,000,000 of strawberries were imported last year.

INTERRELATED INDUSTRIES

He emphasized interrelation of industry and the work which would be afforded in the province, packing, shipping by rail and boat, and supplying boxes and paper for the packing of the fruit. "Imagine what it would mean," the Conservative leader went on, "if only a portion of this money were spent in Canada and put to work in this country."

He had visited a plant, he said, where tissue paper was being made for the wrapping of fruit in the Okanagan Valley. Approximately 7,000,000 feet of tissue was required also for the packing of boxes. These exemplified the interrelation of industry. A million dollars was spent for Canadian fruit "going round and round," which mean five millions benefit to Canada.

HEATHER DAY NETS SUM OF $260

In commemoration of the leaving of the first contingent for the Great War on August 26, 1914, the Lady Douglas Chapter, I.O.D.E., carried out their practice of selling heather in the city on the anniversary of that date, and yesterday citizens were reminded of the stirring days of fifteen years ago by the boxes of heather offered for sale.

Though the returns were smaller than in any previous year, yet the chapter is appreciative of the public approval of its work and $260 is added to the Chapter's funds to carry on the patriotic work of all order.

The various soldiers' organisation received complimentary bouquets of heather, as did the press. Mrs. Helen Mackenzie and Mrs. Tolm were also presented with daintiest boxes of heather.

Mr. R. S. Wilson's thirty-five-foot speedboat K-441 left Armstrong's dock for Ketchikan Sunday morning. The craft ran on the route between Chatham and Dixon's Islands and had to be fitted with new propeller and shaft before leaving for the north. She is powered by an eight-cylinder 100-horse-power, high-speed engine.

BISLEY TEAM TO BE FETED

DISTRICT COUNCIL OF CANADIAN LEGION ARRANGES BANQUET FOR FRIDAY

Sir Percy Lake Will Occupy the Chair, and Local Marksmen Will Be Guests of Honor

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Percy Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., will take the chair at the banquet in honor of Lieut.-Col. R. M. Blair, V.D., C.M., G.C., and the British Columbia members of the Bisley team, which will be held at the Chamber of Commerce, Friday, August 30, at 7:30.

Guests will include the team members, Lieut.-Col. Blair, Lieut. D. Pyle, Major Turner, H. Collins, Sergt. J. H. Regan, and representatives of naval and military forces, the Provincial Government and City Council.

The banquet, which is open to the public, is being arranged by the District Council of the Canadian Legion as a tribute to what is regarded as the finest team which Canada ever sent to the National Rifle Association meeting at Bisley. Victoria members of that team contributed largely to the success of the whole, and it is hoped that citizens will take advantage of the opportunity to do honor to the men whose names are household words in shooting circles throughout the Empire.

Tickets are limited and application should be made without delay to the secretaries of Canadian Legion branches in the city.

TOURIST TRADE PLANS OUTLINED

Great Possibilities of Growth Set Forth by Mr. Leeming in Address to Gyros

The guest speaker at the Gyro Club luncheon at noon yesterday, Mr. David Leeming, president of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, addressed the gathering on "Selling Playgrounds as a Business."

In the course of his remarks, the speaker stressed what had been achieved in other places by publicity proclaiming the advantages they possessed in the way of natural beauties, and exhorted everybody to greater effort in making the attractions of Victoria and vicinity known far and near, so that the travelling public would learn of the pleasures to be derived from a holiday spent on Vancouver Island, and as a result include the island in their travel plans.

The tourist trade, which had already developed into a business of the first magnitude, had unlimited possibilities for the future. Good roads were a first consideration in bidding for this business, so that strangers visiting the island could have ready access to the many lakes and beaches which abound in the vicinity of Victoria. This part of the island will receive a very large share from the tourist trade, said the speaker, and "we can easily increase the many times over if we all pull together and co-operate in making our natural beauties more widely known," he declared. Low fares to and from the Mainland were essential in fostering a desirable tourist traffic. He pointed out the success met by the ferries carrying motor cars into Victoria during the present season, this business developing so rapidly that next year five new steamers would be added to those operated by the C.P.R. and C.N.R.

More amusements, larger restaurants and other facilities for the entertainment and accommodation of tourists, were among other things given especial attention by Mr. Leeming, who was accorded a vote of thanks at the conclusion of his remarks to the members of the club present.

SEN. J. D. REID, PRESCOTT, DEAD

Another Veteran Politician Passes—Dies After Brief Illness Following Upon Stroke

PRESCOTT, Ont., Aug. 26.—Senator John Dowsley Reid died at his home here today following a brief illness. He was in his seventieth year.

Stricken with a stroke on Thursday last the veteran politician had steadily failed in strength. He died soon after noon.

The death of Senator Reid has removed another old face from Canadian politics, a man who served the Conservative party from 1891 until 1921, when he retired from the Cabinet and was summoned to the Senate.

Born at Prescott, Ont., January 1, 1859, Mr. Reid was of Irish parentage and a member of one of the pioneer families of the district. He was first elected in the House in 1891. He held his first portfolio as Minister of Customs in 1911, under the regime of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden. On the reorganization of the Cabinet during the national government in 1917, he was appointed Minister of Railways and Canals. He was again appointed Minister of Railways and Canals in 1920 when Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighan took office.

He received his education at Queen's College, Kingston, and Trinity University, Toronto, graduating as a doctor of medicine.

For seven years he was manager of the Edwardsburg Starch Company and for four year was manager of the Imperial Starch Company.

In 1886 Hon. Mr. Reid was married to Miss Sphie Labatt, of London, Ont. In religious faith he was a staunch Presbyterian.

PRESIDENT IS CHARMED WITH ISLAND TOUR

Sir Henry Thornton Says Vancouver Island Has Great Commercial and Industrial Future

MAYOR SUGGESTS SITE IMPROVEMENT

On his return from a tour up the Island which took him as far as Cumberland, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, stated that he was leaving Victoria with a much greater conviction of the potentialities of Vancouver Island than ever before.

The president stated that there were several leads regarding opportunities for development and that these would be gone thoroughly into by Colonel Blair, who is to be the personal representative of Sir Henry, with wide executive powers, on the British Columbia coast.

Sir Henry was greatly impressed by the scenic beauty of the districts over which he traveled, and said it far surpassed his previous conception of the Island, reminding him, in a British Columbia setting, of Switzerland and the fjords of Norway.

"Scenically," said Sir Henry, "the Island is one of the beauty spots of Canada, and commercially and industrially it has a great future. It was, he said, impossible to gauge the extent of the Island's development within the next few years, for the natural resources of the territory had not been scratched.

Mayor Andrews, who had an interview with Sir Henry Thornton yesterday morning at the Empress Hotel put forward a request by the city that the Canadian National Railways should set back the houses on the block owned by the company on the east side of Parliament Square, which is to be the site of the future Canadian National Railways hotel, and put the property in lawn and flowers until such time as it was required for the construction of the hotel.

The mayor stated that Sir Henry was sympathetic to the city's request and promised to look over the property before leaving for the Mainland.

The Canadian National Railway owns all the lots fronting on the east side of Government Street, between Elliott and Belleville Streets, in addition to other lots in rear of those facing on Government Street.

The property, which is at present occupied by a number of old wooden houses, was purchased under the regime of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway many years ago, and the object of the request is the improvement of the aspect of Parliament Square.

Sir Henry spent a busy morning in the city yesterday in interviews and inspection of the company's property here. During the forenoon he inspected the plant of the Victoria Cold Storage and Terminal Warehouse Company, being shown over the new building by Mr. R. D. Brown. He also found time to look over the company's holdings at Ogden Point. The president left by the afternoon train for Vancouver to leave last night for Prince Rupert.

Mrs. Maude MacLaren Holden and Mr. Dugald Llewelyn Gillespie, executors of the estate of the late Dr. D. B. Holden, are the plaintiffs in this second action in which damages are sought for the death of the testator from injuries received in the disaster which took a toll of seven lives. DECLINE IN BIRTH RATE

Dominion statistics show that this province has the lowest birth rate of any province in Canada. In all provinces a decline has been shown during the last eight years, one reason no doubt being the large number of our people who have emigrated to the United States. In 1921 the birth rate in this province per thousand of the inhabitants was 20.3; last year this rate had declined to 17.7. Every province has showed a decline during the past eight years, though the smallest reduction is in Quebec, which had a rate of 32.1 in 1921 and 31.8 in 1928. The statistical information published points out that Montreal, during 1928, had twice as many births as the whole of British Columbia, and that Toronto, despite its growth in population, had fewer births in 1928 than in 1921.

In this city the number of births in 1921 was 928, whereas last year the total was 723. Victoria's population has increased very appreciably during the past eight years, yet there has been a substantial decline in the birth rate. In Vancouver, Point Grey and South Vancouver the decline has not been so great. In these three places there were 3,893 births in 1921 and 3,791 in 1928. On the other hand New Westminster shows an increase from 441 in 1921 to 528 in 1928. There is a decline in numbers for British Columbia as a whole during the eight years from 10,653 in 1921 to 10,313 in 1928.

The causes which have contributed to a decline in the birth rate are doubtless many. One is the emigration of married persons. Another is the bringing of luxuries within reach of the many by means of the instalment system of buying. The desire for these luxuries and the ability to secure them has led to the determination to keep the size of families at a lower level. Husbands and wives are looking for a greater measure of freedom, and this is particularly so among those of the younger generation who marry. They wish to remain, so far as possible, untrammelled by family responsibilities. Hence the growing disposition to live in flats.

The tendency to smaller families is not peculiar to Canada. It is in evidence in all countries where the boast of an advanced civilization is be loudest. The point for British Columbians to consider is that the birth rate here is lower than in any province in the Dominion. There may be contributory reasons in this province, and perhaps one of them is the fact that it has suffered from the loss of population during the past eight years. It is a serious thing in any country when the birth rate declines. It is because of such decline that Canada is trying to make good the deficiency by immigration, but that is never as good a substitute as the natural increase of the existing population.

A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION

The need for more accommodation is once again the reason given by the Provincial Exhibition which came to an end on Saturday last. The attendance, this year was larger than ever; it probably would have been larger still were it not for one comparatively wet day. The exhibits were many and varied, and crowded, and it is that very condition which creates the need for amendment. Happily there is an excellent likelihood that by the time the 1930 Exhibition is held there will be a new building and possibly some other arrangements made which will increase the space for exhibitors. More space is needed for better display and to house the greatly increased exhibits which are seeking an opportunity for advertisement annually.

The Fair, as it was, was a good achievement. It reflects much credit on the indefatigable work of the officials. The directors of the British Columbia Agricultural Association are entitled to special praise, those who have been most assiduously active being Mr. W. H. Munsie, the president; Mr. W. H. Mearns, the secretary, and Mr. George Sangster. These names have become synonymous with and associated with the growing success of each recurring exhibition. It shows how their hearts are in the event since they are able, by the lessons which they learn, to make each new exhibition better than its predecessors. The thanks of all Victorians and of all exhibitors, in fact of all who attended the Exhibition in any capacity, are due to these directors. When their campaign for more accommodation is achieved they will be pleased. It is not good for any exhibition directors to have to work with limited space. Victoria has grown enough to warrant better buildings for the advertisement of its industrial development.

COMMUNISTS IN TORONTO

Toronto seems to be the headquarters of the Communists in this country. It is only there that they make any overt trouble; only there that their numbers are sufficient to cause unusual exercise of police vigilance. The civic authorities have banned meetings addressed in a foreign language, which is a correct procedure, for otherwise incendiary utterances could be made and escape the notice of the police. The Communists are up in arms because of this order, which would indicate that it estops them from doing something that is against the public weal. They are threatening to hold meetings to defy the police. They are even threatening to riot in their efforts to proclaim the doctrine of Moscow as the best of all possible panaceas for human ills. The missionaries of Bolshevism are persistent, and the propaganda so blatant in Toronto it percolates through many places in the Dominion.

Politically, of course, like in Britain, the Communists of Canada are powerless. They have given up hope of winning political recognition, and hence the campaign of propaganda which is perturbing Toronto. It is unwise on their part to defy law and order in this or any other country in the British Empire. Such defiance is a challenge to good citizenship and one that is always accepted with alacrity. Toronto is dealing calmly but powerfully with the Communist threat to peace. It would be better so to deal with them out of court, but so far in this country the people have been quite apathetic to their machinations and have not summoned up sufficient energy to pour ridicule on their heads.

BELLIGERENT DEMONSTRATIONS

Soviet Russia engaged in anti-war demonstrations on August 1 and endeavored to organise similar demonstrations all over the world, but with very indifferent success. In Russia, however, according to the Soviet creed, they were a success, though devoted in a spirit which hardly suggests that war is being exorcised from the spirit of the people in that land. As a part of the Moscow celebrations the authorities issued rifles, bayonets and other weapons to 40,000 boys and girls so as to make an impressive demonstration. Regular troops with heavy artillery also marched in the processions which were continued for several days. The children carried banners which contained legends anything but peaceful or calculated as inimical to war. These vowed vengeance on the world's non-Bolshevists, on the Social Democrats, on Ramsay MacDonald, the British Prime Minister, on M. Poincare and on General Chiang Kai-Shek. The followers of the Soviet regime were urged by other legends to subscribe to the new Soviet loan to repel the imperialists. The peculiar mentality indulged by Soviet authority may interpret such demonstrations as opposed to war. In other countries they can only be regarded as particularly belligerent, because the passions of the people were excited against their actual and mythical enemies everywhere.

Since research work was commenced with a desire to find the cause and the cure for cancer there has been an underlying effort to associate the disease with a wrong form of diet. The further research goes, yet there has been a substantial decline in the birth rate. In Vancouver, Point Grey and South Vancouver the decline has not been so great. In these three places there were 3,893 births in 1921 and 3,791 in 1928. On the other hand New Westminster shows an increase from 441 in 1921 to 528 in 1928. FENCES AND HEDGES

Sir,—I had pleasure in reading your paper of August 4 and the item on page seven headed, "Value Increased by Improvement." I am once again reminded of such an improvement; it would be to many of the properties in Victoria and how much more attractive the city would be in general to one looking around for the purpose of inspection, if some of these unsightly side board fences and so-called hedges were eliminated. I have lived in Victoria for about four years until recently, and now this city a few weeks ago, and the absence of fences and hedges, both in this city and in driving through the country to Buffalo, I've passed through a number of old villages, but the grounds in front of the houses, while not with the numerous flowers of Victoria, are nicely kept; no unsightly fence of any kind, or hedge of any hedges, and on each side of the street maple shade trees were planted a number of years ago, and they have grown so the two are meeting over the street.

Now what improvement does such create on the mind of a stranger passing through streets where he sees such conditions. In contrast with old hedges and board fences I couldn't help but think how much more attractive Victoria would be if such were the conditions along the street car city.

I am wondering if this letter would be any inspiration to have to improve their homes as above, which will make them more attractive, and more saleable and beneficial to the city in general.

LORD LLOYD

Sir,—An editorial note in your issue of the 24th inst. reads:

"Lord Lloyd, whom the Labor Government in Britain has recalled from Egypt was one of Britain's pro-consuls. He is a man of noble personal qualities, an high-minded orator and the true exemplar of what is best in British traditions. He was not amenable to the dictations of party politics and hence he has been given his recall."

The Manchester Guardian enjoys a world-wide reputation both for the reliability of its information and for its impartiality in its comments. It happens to be neither Labor nor Conservative. The Guardian, in effect, that the late Baldwin Government, with some faults in other respects, was disposed to a forward policy in Egypt, that Lord Lloyd was difficult, and would have been recalled had the Labor Government remained in office; and that Mr. Churchill must, from being singularly misinformed, or he would not have asked his conscious quotation in the House. Mr. Churchill's reply, and the speech with which he introduced his budget, support this view. It would seem, then, that party politics have little to do with this question. Even pro-consuls should be allowed to differ from Downing Street.

A RACING COMMISSION

Sir,—It sure is time they had a racing commission in this Province for there has been some raw deals handed out to the racing fans. A Colwood a horse named Dad Quick, after not taking any part in the parade, was led out to the starting gate, which is opposite the paddock entrance, and was all ready to go when the other horses were just coming up after a walk of half a mile. As a result, Dad Quick got a flying start and it was easy money again for the knowing ones.

In England a leading jockey was disqualified and fined heavy because he did not ride his horse in the parade. The horse being unruly he walked alongside of it. The stewards judged him disqualified, saying the other horses racked their nerves in the parade and this unruly horse did not. Perhaps he was too smart too big an advantage over the other horses, so he was disqualified. I know how does it come about that horses two and twelve years old are racing races in Victoria. Yes, it's sure time the supporters got a chance.

THE EARWIG

Sir,—For the benefit of those interested in recent publication in The Colonist of letters from Messrs. Bennett and Downs, re the destruction of the earwig, I may add, commonly known as the garden scavenger, hence seldom seen in a clean and healthy garden. It might be of special interest to all concerned to know and read the history in brief of one of the most familiar of household pests, yet the life of it remained very inaccurately known. It is a charming and wonderful story with many quite unique features, and will certainly dispose with that wrong impression formed by the majority of the most learned and even professional gardeners. Having your kind permission, "Insect Animal Life," part 23, latest publication.

AUTUMN

Brown-red are Autumn's tresses,
Scarlet leaves—her party dresses.
Golden-bronze her shoes;
Russet tints, her hunting feather,
Shot with purple-blue of heather;
Trees wear buff-brown hose.

Eye she don her sphinxed cover,
Autumn-like, Dame Mature's lover,
Glide her blushing form
Matronly, stately, her winning
Ways set every heart a-spinning,
That her friendship seeks.

Springtime is the New Year's childhood;
Summer—Youth's, amongst life's wildwood,
Fire of care—and glad;
Autumn days are love-endearing;
Winter—cold, as snow-appearing;
Here and slow and sad.

Brown-red are Autumn's tresses,
Scarlet leaves—her party dresses.
Love, perfected, here;
Purple hills and Autumn weather
Brings the brightest joys together,
In our glad life-year!

DE Witt Clinton, whose name in Revere associated with the building of the Erie Canal, which connects the Great Lakes with the Atlantic seaboard, was born in Little Britain, New York, in 1769. He entered the bar after finishing college, and held one political office after another, finally holding the office of mayor of New York for twelve years. In 1812 he was defeated by Madison for the Presidency, and then became governor of the Empire State for three terms. During his third term he was carried triumphantly from Albany to New York by barge, and was lauded for his devoted service to the enterprise.

VICTORIA LADY IS SUCCESSFUL

MRS. JEAN AIKMAN BUILDS UP POULTRY BUSINESS IN RESEDA, CALIFORNIA

Starts in Small Way on Acre of Land and Now Has Flourishing White Leghorns

"Poultry raising has brought independence and financial success," is the success Mrs. Jean Aikman, of Reseda, California, a town in 1926, purchased an acre of land on Strathmore Street, near Reseda Boulevard, and started into the business, producing "about 3,000 and 3,000 eggs, chicks a year," says The Reseda News, of Reseda, Cal.

"Mrs. Aikman comes from Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, where she learned the poultry business in a six months' day and night course at the University of British Columbia. Mrs. Aikman came to Reseda with her infant daughter, Paula Tod, and while keeping house and caring for the baby, in the little cottage she built on the ranch, and made a living from breeding and selling poultry. Her story would be one for a 'women' magazine, for here is a true case of a lone woman making more than good in the poultry game.

"Four years have passed and Mrs. Aikman has improved and added to the little cottage, enlarged her poultry equipment, and changed from breeding chicks to keeping laying hens and selling eggs, pullets and cockerels. She has 1,300 White Leghorns and a few Rhode Island Reds. From her laying hens she is now getting over 50 eggs daily.

"Mrs. Aikman is offering her place and business for sale, and as soon as it is disposed of, she intends to return to British Columbia. She may take up business there or she may stay for an extended visit and return. Mrs. Aikman loves the climate here, but I am homesick for British Columbia,' she says."

TWO LADS DROWN IN FRASER RIVER

Older Lad Said to Have Lost Life While Trying to Rescue Younger Brother

NEW WESTMINSTER, Aug. 26.—Buddy Hudson, six, and George McLeod, aged about eight, drowned at 4.30 p.m. Sunday in the Fraser River. The older lad is said to have lost his life in an attempt to save the younger.

According to police, young Hudson was fishing from a scow moored to the wharf of Jones Shipyard, Lulu Island. Falling in, it is alleged by one witness, the water was about 20 feet toward a small wharf. Mr. Tyrand and his sister were sitting on the wharf, saw the small boy struggling in the water. McDonald dived in after him, caught hold of the little boy and had succeeded in bringing him to within thirty feet of the shore when, according to Irene McDonald, both bodies sank beyond his reach.

It was some hours before both bodies were recovered by police.

DAY'S END

What would you ask
When day has ended,
Leaving you lack
As dusk descends?

Soft the stars, eyes,
Frugal cries fray harsh,
Where white mists rise
Over the marsh.

What would you ask
When day has fled?
Lift up your mask,
Cast it aside.

Here where the dim
Cypress boughs meet,
Laugh if your whim
Makes laughter sweet.

What would you ask
When day is through?
Life up your mask
Now, and be true.

The farmer met one of his new neighbors on the road. The latter was carrying a dripping condition.

"Say, Bill," he said, "what 'ave ye been doin'?"

"Oh," was the reply, "I've just been 'avin' a game o' cricket, wi' the old bull for the pond. I won the toss and won in first."

Report on Consolidated Whaling Company's Activities for Season at Two Northern Stations

SIX BOATS ARE NOW ENGAGED

Looking forward to what had given every promise of being a banner year for the Consolidated Whaling Company, operating two stations on the Queen Charlotte Islands, at Rose Harbor and Naden Harbor respectively, Captain O. Le Marquand, managing director of the company, informed a Colonist representative yesterday that unfavorable conditions which had been ideal until August 11, winds and currents keeping inferred in certain well-defined areas within a reasonable distance of the coast, then suddenly on that date. A succession of gales interfered with disastrous results and completely blighted the hope which had been held for some time, scattering the small fleet about and driving them far out in the ocean, where the big boats could follow, making it impossible for the commencement of successful hunting because of the distance away as well as on account of the prevailing weather conditions. As a result very few whales have been taken since that date.

NATURE OF CATCH

On June 11 the station at Rose Harbor had accounted for a total of two hundred and seventy whales, which was a good start, the completing of one hundred and sixteen finbacks, eighty-eight sei whales, ninety plus, fifty-six sei, four jumpbacks and one cachelot. The station at Naden, which give a large yield of oil and are eagerly sought by the manufacturers, had taken but one season, while finbacks were present in large numbers ever since the season started. Sperms, too, were abundant, but the oil of this whale does not demand the price it sold for earlier in and during the war. What would have been a treasure in the days of the war is nothing like the richer, or right whale, taken at Rose Harbor by one of the boats operating from that station. This whale produces a variety of oil that, at one time in great demand for corset making, when it was worth in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars a ton, but today it is joined in all that it is worth today. So much for changing fashions in ladies wearing apparel, and the effect one change at least had on the whaling industry.

At Naden Harbor, the station operated from that start until some time after the station at Rose Harbor had commenced whaling, the total catch at the same date given for Naden Harbor stands at ninety-one mammals. Of these, forty were of the sperm variety, six were sulphur bottoms, thirty-three were finbacks, three were humpbacks and nine were sei, the latter being a variety of the finback whale. This total added to the total of the Rose Harbor catch, makes a grand total of three hundred and sixty whales taken up to August 11.

BOATS ENGAGED

The same weather conditions prevailed at both stations, the boats operating out of Rose Harbor are the White Black, Seven and Blue, four in all. Out of Naden Harbor, the Lady Willowby, Grant and the Green go forth. The boats have been cruising well off-shore, the majority of the whales being taken between fifty and one hundred and twenty miles out. No whaling has been done in sight of Charlotte Sound or its approaches. If weather conditions were favorable, the station at Rose Harbor will continue to operate for a considerable time, but Naden Harbor station running until October 15, or even later if conditions warrant.

INCIDENTS OF ACTIVITY

Accidents were not altogether responsible for interfering with the whale fishery, one gale of mild season for a record catch of whales in 1929. In June the boat met with an accident and had to come south for repairs, after having harpooned sperm whale had damaged her hull considerably. The boat, Seven and Okay had the misfortune to lose a propeller while proceeding north through Johnstone Strait, and had to return to Rupert for extensive repairs. She is now on her way to the Queen Charlotte stations to take up a cargo of whaling by-products south. She recently returned from Blackfish Sound, where she loaded pilchard and fish meal for Vancouver.

Commenting on the whaling industry generally, Captain Le Marquand was optimistic as to the future. Even with the modern methods employed by the catcher boats, and the keenest kind of competition on the part of the whaling concerns engaged in the industry, there seemed to be no diminution in the number of the mammals. In the southern seas greater inroads upon numbers of whales are taken yearly, principal stations being the Falkland Dependencies, South Shetlands and the Ross Sea. Fleets have just left for way for the latter base, where there are seven thousand men employed in the different whaling ships in industry.

Referring to the floating stations, which are still being experimented with, Mr. Consolidated Whaling Company official stated that the last reports from one of the two "floats" now operating indicated that the take would be considerably below that of last year, about eight thousand barrels constituting the oil product when the report was made, and that by now the total would be much higher, the catch by one ship for the same period last year. Whaling in the North Atlantic has been practically abandoned, two small stations only operating at present, both of them being situated in Newfoundland.

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN IN LABOR DAY EXCURSION

Great interest is being taken in the Labor Day excursion to Duncan under the District Council of the Canadian Legion. Already a number of seats have been reserved for the trip, while further reservations may be made at any branches of the Canadian Legion. The trip is being arranged in conjunction with the annual sports day of the Cowichan Branch of the Canadian Legion.

PRESENT SITE OF AIRFIELD OBJECTED TO

Jubilee Hospital Board of Directors Protest to City Council Against Lansdowne Road Location

NOISE OF PLANES AFFECTS PATIENTS

That the Lansdowne Road Field, owing to its location (adjoined by the Jubilee Hospital), should not be used as a place for aircraft to land or from which to take off, and that the development as an airport with increasing traffic would create an impossible condition for hospital work, is the position taken by the board of directors of the Jubilee Hospital in a letter to the City Council at last night's meeting. The directors point out in this letter that with the variety and extent of vacant land close to the city another location could easily be obtained and they ask the council to assist in having a different site chosen for the proposed landing field.

The directors mention that the situation of the present landing field was such that airplanes in rising take off in a southerly direction towards the hospital. Experience showed, they state, that the distance being short no great altitude was attained before reaching the hospital the plane passing over very close to the roof, constituting a serious disturbance to the patients.

The letter goes on to say that in view of the demands being made for the establishment of an airport and the development of the Lansdowne airdrome, the directors wished to advise the city of the position of the hospital. In the extension of the traffic would, it was stated, create an impossible condition for hospital work.

"There is no doubt," continues the letter, "that air traffic will be a necessity of the future, but there does not seem to be any necessity why it should be established in a manner to destroy valuable public property.

"With so much vacant ground in close proximity to the city, another location could easily be obtained and the directors hope the council will not only refrain from granting city funds towards improving the present grounds, but will use its best endeavors towards obtaining a change of location of the landing field."

On the motion of Alderman Dewar the letter was referred to the industrial committee.

ELK LAKE ENCROACHMENTS

In regard to the encroachment upon city-owned property at Elk Lake by the erection of buildings, a letter read from Messrs. Ross, Bott, Maclean & Shandley to the city clerk stating that it would not be advisable to make any agreement and suggesting that a notification of the encroachment be sent with a request that the encroachments be removed and abated.

Alderman Harvey thought that some arrangement should be made, and he suggested that the Mayor and the Reeve of Saanich discuss the matter. Mayor Ainscomb said that in a short time there would be a conference with the Saanich Municipality. In the meantime, therefore, the letter was ordered laid on the table.

The Municipality of Oak Bay wrote stating that about the year 1913 a sewer was laid for about 500 feet along the northern part of the eastern boundary of the Fair Grounds from Thompson Avenue to Pacific Avenue. Apparently no formal easement was ever obtained. The sewer runs along the fence line. It was mentioned, but the manholes were on the street allowance on the subdivision. The municipality would be glad to arrange for a proper grant of easement. The matter was referred to the Public Works committee for report.

SUGGESTED LEGISLATION

In connection with the request of the secretary of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for resolutions the city proposes to submit to the forthcoming meeting, Ald. Marchant suggested the advisability of there being some authority in British Columbia, as in the case of the Local Government Board in England, which had powers for dealing with investments of municipal securities. He also proposed that all parks and playgrounds set aside for the free use of the public in perpetuity be free from taxation, provincial or municipal.

Another approved suggestion by Ald. Marchant was "that sinking funds may at any time be available for the purpose of municipalities on its own bonds or obligations, provided that the municipality shall, in its own annual budgets, make full provision for the ultimate redemption of its bonds or obligations at the due date required in the by-law authorizing the issue of the bonds or obligations."

It was decided that the usual grant of $50 be made to the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club towards the annual swimming gala for school children on October 5.

Mr. John A. Harrison, assistant city treasurer and collector, was appointed acting city treasurer and collector during the absence of Mr. Edwin C. Smith on vacation.

The recommendation of the fire wardens' committee that the application for permission to lay a fire alarm cable across the harbor under the conditions named by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, be granted, was approved. The "Home for Aged and Infirm Land Sale By-Law" and the "Home for Aged and Infirm, Cadboro Bay Road Widening Land Sale By-Law" were given final reading.

The fortnightly meetings of the City Council for the Summer months finish at the end of the week, but in consequence of Monday next being Labor Day, the next meeting of the council will take place on September 9.

Eaton, of Cole & Company, Cleveland, O., is giving $250,000; Mr. Gordon C. Edwards, M.P., of Ottawa, $200,000; Mr. A. E. McKenzie, of the McKenzie Seed Company, Limited, Brandon, Man., $100,000, and two men residing in Winnipeg are giving $50,000 each.

Of the total of $750,000, $500,000 becomes interest-bearing immediately at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent per annum. Before the principal sum of $750,000 is turned over absolutely to the college, the college must comply with two conditions. Upon these conditions being complied with the colleges will then become entitled without further conditions to the principal of $750,000, as an addition to its endowment fund. In the meantime the college will receive for purposes of general maintenance, interest at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent per annum on $550,000 of the $750,000 provided for under the agreement which has just been executed.

RESPONSIBILITY PUT ON VENDOR FOR MANY HOURS

New Amendment to Canadian Egg Regulations Makes Retailers Accountable for Their Sales

JOBBERS MUST PUT TAGS ON STOCKS

The amended Canadian egg regulations set forth that in all transactions between wholesaler and retailer, complaints by purchaser to the vendor with respect to eggs below the specified grade must be made within thirty-six hours of receipt of the eggs. The responsibility of eggs below grade is thus put upon the vendor for the period of thirty-six hours after delivery to the purchaser. After thirty-six hours following a sale or delivery the responsibility is upon the person in whose possession such eggs are found. No case or container of eggs is considered to be properly marked if, upon examination by an inspector at destination or on delivery, it contains more than an average of 6 1-3 per cent below grade thereof stated, apart from breakage.

Under the regulations no wholesaler shall ship eggs, or cause eggs to be shipped, transported or delivered, or have eggs on his warehouse floor ready for delivery unless the cases or containers are marked or labeled or tagged on both ends with the correct name of the class and the grade of the eggs contained therein in accordance with the Canadian standards, and also with the name of the country of origin when other than domestic product. No eggs shall be offered for sale, advertised for sale, kept for sale, sold, exposed or disposed by any person selling or offering eggs for sale or delivering eggs direct to a consumer as a retailer, in a store or in any public place or manner, unless the case or container is marked with the correct name and grade.

MUST BE DISTINCT

The markings on egg containers must be in distinctly conspicuous solid block letters at least three-quarters of an inch in height, except in the instance of cartons, when the lettering must be at least half an inch in height. The name of the class and the name of the grade of eggs must be equal in prominence and the lettering in each must be of the same size, shape and color. In open containers, when the markings are not actually attached to the container they must be placed on top of the eggs in the container, at all times clearly visible to the public. When cartons are packed in cases or other containers both cases or containers and cartons should be marked as specified.

The regulations make it illegal for anyone to publish an untrue, deceptive or misleading advertisement in respect to eggs offered for sale or distribution. In all advertisements the correct class and grade of eggs must be given equal prominence in size of lettering with other matter in the advertisement, with the name of the class preceding the grade.

It is stipulated that no person shall buy, display, offer for sale, sell or ship eggs which are not fit for human food.

PROMINENT DISPLAY

Any retailer offering or displaying eggs for sale must display in a prominent place, in full view of the public in his place of business, such card or tablet as may be prescribed by the Minister of Agriculture setting forth the classes and grades of eggs as defined in the Canadian Standards.

The regulations deal at length with country purchase and cold-storage and fourteen regulations have been drawn up in connection with exports from Canada and interprovincial shipment.

NEW BRITISH R. A. F. PLANES

LONDON, Aug. 10 (By Mail)—What member of the feathered kingdom can rise from the ground and in a few minutes reach a height of 16,000 feet? Yet that is the record of Britain's latest all-metal single-seater fighting plane, the Building, only its full military load. This machine makes a speed of 180 miles per hour fully loaded, whether on the ground, or at 10,000, 20,000 or 30,000 feet altitude. Contrasted with the Schneider Cup record of 1923, when the American seaplane won with a speed of 177 miles per hour, these figures give some idea of the advance in airplane construction on this side.

These machines are the only service type which have in production proved faster than the type qualification.

FLOATS IN THE AIR.

In vivid, in fact almost startling contrast, is the experimental plane which goes by the strange name—almost as strange as its appearance—the Pterodactyl class. This "batwing" or tailless airplane is a marvelous picture in flight, seemingly floating about the sky as effortless as an albatross, and indeed, is not so very far behind that bird, for the earlier type Pterodactyl carried an engine of only 45 horsepower, yet maneuvered as lightly and airily as a feather in the wind. The latest type, of similar construction and design, has an engine of 85 horsepower, and with this comparatively trifling power has attained the amazing speed of 105 miles per hour. These machines, in flight, seem to actually hover without motion at times.

HEAVY CARGO PLANES

In the heavier types are shown the Victoria troopcarrier with a capacity of twenty-five passengers and crew. Planes of this type were utilized in evacuating Europeans from Kabul during the recent uncomfortable troubles there ex-King Amanullah and his successor. Some of these flew from Karachi, India, and flying over mountains of 20,000 height it had been intended they should have to cross, landed safely at Kabul and while a mutual "cease fire" was observed by the antagonists loaded the women and children and removed them to safety in India.

The Virginia are standard twin-engined night bombers with two engines. They attain a speed of 85 to 100 miles per hour and have an immense range. They weigh empty 9,500 pounds, carry a crew of four and over-all load of 20,000 pounds. In the earlier types they had triangulate towards the extremity of each wing, but these have since been superseded by placing a gunpit in the tail between the two steering planes.

The Fairy III F type is a general utility type of day bomber, photographic reconnaissance and communication work, and for use with aircraft carriers. It has a speed of 150 miles.

The new standard army co-operation plane is another of the general utility type for use in artillery observation, spotting and similar tasks.

Another new machine of great capabilities is the Sidestrand, just coming into service as a day bomber. This a twin-engined plane, which carries double the weight of any day bombing plane with a loaded speed of 140 to 150 miles and has a striking feature in that blind spots have been obviated by the placing of the engines on the wings and by the installation of a gun embrasure on the underside of the tail, accessible through a comfortable body which is in most of the Great War period machines.

THRILLS FOR HOURS

At this year's Royal Air Force pageant at Hendon all these, with other types too numerous to mention, gave displays of almost every phase of flying imaginable and provided thrills by the hour for the thousands of spectators gathered below. A new feature was the display of acrobatics with the planes throwing out vari-colored smoke, tracing the course of their evolutions in the sky above.

Among the thrills provided for the groundlings were the half-roll of the top of a loop, slow rolls, flick rolls, spinning of every imaginable type including the amazing spin vertically upwards with a flick roll at the top to the horizontal, and inverted loops.

A bookmaker at a race meeting in the North of England had a successful first day and sent his young wife a cheque. The following day she went to the bank and said: "I want this cheque cashed please. My husband sent it to me in a way on business."

"Quite so, madam," replied the cashier, "but you must first endorse it—that is, sign it on the back, you know."

The beaming wife went to a desk and presently presented the cheque, having written on it "Your loving wife, Edith."

On this occasion Goldsmith, Bowell and Dr. Johnsing were making merry in a hay field.

Goldsmith—Sir, a la cart. You might know that.

Dr. Johnsing—Why, sir, I don't know as to that. Some horses like it a la mowed.

New IRONIZED YEAST adds pounds in few weeks. Results Guaranteed—or pay nothing.

Daily, men and women write that Ironized Yeast added 5 to 15 pounds in few weeks. Skinny, hollow "protruding" ribs filled out. Skin cleared. Wrinkles vanished. New "pep" gained. They look and feel years younger. They ask—how does it do such work on thin people?

Ironized Yeast is two great tonics in one. Weight-building Yeast is treated with two kinds of strengthening iron, which tone up the nerves and build rich, red blood cells and muscles. The Yeast is also treated with Vitamin Ergo to increase its effectiveness.

Only when Yeast is Ironized is it most effective, iron is needed to bring out the weight-building strengthening values of Yeast.

Chemainus Review W.B.A.

Owing to the unsettled state of the weather, the Chemainus Review, No. 19, Women's Benefit Association, decided to hold its entertainment, for the members and their families, in the old Recreation Hall, instead of the usual annual picnic. There was an excellent attendance, and the afternoon proved a tremendous success. The following races, under the able management of Mrs. Hallberg and Mrs. Clyne, were entered into with whole-hearted enjoyment and provided endless fun: Girls, six and under, 1, Margaret Work; 2, Margaret Eberts. Girls, eight to eleven, 1, Julia Behman; 2, Gladys Cook. Boys, eight to eleven, 1, Norman Work; 2, Dave Murray. Babies' race, 1, Norman Smith; 2, Jean Nicholson. Girls, eleven to fourteen, 1, Elsie Behman; 2, Helen Clyne. The races were followed by a very amusing contest for ladies, where the competitors had to race to a given point, eat a soda biscuit, whistle a tune, and return to the starting point. The winners were, 1, Mrs. Nicholson; 2, Mrs. Murray. Supper was served in the dining-room by the ways and means committee, the tables being pleasingly arranged with dahlia blooms. Amongst those present were the following: Mrs. English with her son, Earl and Bob; Mrs. Murray, the Misses Grace and Dolly Murray; Mrs. Behman and three children, Mrs. Eberts and two children, Mr. Eatridge, Mrs. Harry Smith and two children, Mr. and Mrs. James Cook and family, Miss Elsie Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. George Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Miss Kathleen Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. P. First United Guild

A well attended meeting of the Women's Guild of the First United Church—the first meeting since the holiday season—was held in the church parlor yesterday afternoon, the president, Mrs. A. S. Christie, in the chair. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, led by Mrs. Morgan. The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance to the credit of the society. The members in charge of the quilts that are being made, Mesdames Considerare, Bunn, Clark and Schroeder, reported progress. A rummage sale was arranged to take place on September 26 in the schoolroom of the church, also a guest tea on Friday, October 4, and the usual Autumn bazaar, to be held on Saturday, November 30. Tea was served at the close of the meeting, the hostesses being Miss McAllan and Mrs. McBride.

Coats for the Younger Generation

THE finesse that is the byword of Autumn coats for women is indicated in models for the child of from seven to fourteen years. Many of the dainty tailoring shown which fashion has become intent are repeated in the juvenile mode.

A reproduction of the smart lines in coat and collar as well as in the material itself, is to be noted in the coat shown, right centre, where the flared tunic is placed low and seemingly extends the width of the straight model. The fashionable note of brown is marked in this cocoa brown broadcloth enhanced by a shawl collar and cuffs of French beaver.

Suede finished surfaces, so prominent in models for young women, are also seen in coats for young girls. Blue suede cloth makes the charming models shown, left centre, the coat straight in line with tailored detail elaborating back and krimmer collar and cuffs in pointed outline. This new type of collar stands high about the neck with the requisite that the hat be very small.

A persistently attractive model throughout the seasons is the semi-sports coats of soft, silk fabric. At the left above is jaunty one for the small girl. It is of camel's hair tweed in a soft shade of lavender with a mushroom collar of fox, and is belted in self material.

Representative of the models in all fur, which more and more are being found desirable for youth in cold weather, is the swagger coat at the extreme right. It adheres to the straight line and is closed with two buttons. Nutria makes the shawl collar and the small muff—a vogue which will this year run the gamut of all ages. In this instance Mexican leopard cat is the fur selected.

NEW HATS SHOW SPANISH EFFECT

Miss Cicero, of Hudson's Bay Company, Returns From Buying Trip in the East

Spanish effects, a marked deepening of the back, combinations of rough and smooth velours, draped brims and nose veils are among some of the features to be noted in the new Autumn millinery as recording to Miss Myra Cicero, head of the Hudson's Bay Company's millinery department, who returned yesterday from her annual buying trip in the East.

Although the Hudson's Bay Company buys almost exclusively from Canadian or other British manufacturers, Miss Cicero does not limit her study of the season's modes to these, and after stopping what Toronto and Montreal had to offer she went on to New York and visited some of the leading ateliers there. The above summarizes the outstanding changes in the fashion of the moment as it effects hats, but those who want more definite information may see some of the latest models at the Hudson's Bay Company's store. Among these are some hats embodying the Spanish influence, both in the close-fitting molded crown styles and the Toreador effects with pom-pom trimming under the brim, and some of the new models with the draped brims, the shape in question becoming an extension of jive velour which forms the crown, sometimes sweeping down over the ear like a long plume, or dipping over the shoulder at the back.

The season's most fashionable colors in millinery as in other things are mushroom brown, beige, and Moulé blue. English green (old hunting green) and black. The fashionable line of the hat is off the face, showing the brow to advantage, simple, but the workmanship is elaborate and elegant.

Authors Are Guests At President's Home

Members of the Victoria and District branch of the Canadian Author's Association were the guests for a few days as of their president, Mr. Alfred Carmichael, and Mrs. Carmichael, at the Carmichael residence, Sassenos. The visit, which afforded several of the members their first opportunity of seeing the picturesque district, was prefaced by a short business session, which was utilized for the further discussion of the question of forming a local branch of the League of Western Writers. Several of those present had already signified their intention of joining this body. Mrs. M. H. Ralhom and Mr. Donald Fraser, delegates from Victoria to the recent convention held in Halifax, were warmly welcomed home and the programme for the September meeting of the Author's Association was entrusted to them.

Following the meeting the visitors enjoyed a generous alfresco spread, during which they evinced their appreciation to host and hostess by a hearty vote of thanks, followed by a round of applause.

Miss Edith Franks was accompanied by her guest, Miss W. M. Ellis, of Montreal, who has been spending the Summer at the Coast.

Oh a body kits a body.
Riding on a bus
Folk write letters to the papers,
Making quite a fuss.
But the lassie and her laddie
Dinna gie a cuss.
Nor fash themselves hoot liffer folk
While kissing on a bus.

Last Excursion to Seattle this season will be on Thursday, August 29, Princess Patricia.

ALPINE CLUB AT MOUNT MAXWELL

Fifteen Members Make Week-End Expedition to Summit Island—Skilled Ropework

Fifteen members of the Vancouver Island section of the Alpine Club of Canada climbed Mount Maxwell, Salt Spring Island, on Sunday. The exceptionally fine weather made the outing unusually enjoyable. Thanks to the good visibility the view from the summit (1,906 feet) was magnificent, embracing Mounts Arrowsmith and Moriarty, Shawnigan Lake, Empress Island and other distant details of Vancouver Island, as well as the numerous islands of the Straits and many peaks in the Coast range on the mainland.

The party left Victoria by motor at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and at Deep Bay transferred to launches which conveyed them to Burgoyne Bay, Salt Spring Island. Here camp was pitched for the night, and after supper had the customary campfire "sing-song," everyone turned in early to be ready for the morning start. The climb began about 7 o'clock, the cars being left to the edge of the timber, without the rope, and the remainder of the distance with the rope. The negotiating of the hazardous chimney was fraught with some difficulties, owing to the amount of snow and the crumbly condition of the rock, but Mr. C. L. Harrison again showed infinite skill and patience as leader, and the summit was reached without mishap by middday. The return trip was accomplished in short time, camp being broken again about 3 o'clock. Twelve members made the summit, the remainder who dropped out, making a detour and reaching camp a short time later. Camp was broken at 5 o'clock, and by 8 o'clock everyone was back in Victoria.

The personnel of the expedition was as follows: Mr. C. L. Harrison, leader; Mrs. Hugh McKenzie, Miss V. McKenzie, Mrs. Haddow, Miss Haddow, Miss Naomi Wollaston, Miss Mary Girdwood, Miss Hamilton, Mr. Keenan, Mr. R. Douglas, F. V. Jones, H. G. Dickson, B. Todd, D. and N. Martin, K. M. Chadwick.

The next expedition will be to the Lake of the Seven Hills, the Alpine Club property in the Stoke district, where a camp will be held over the coming week-end. Members will leave the city on Saturday, returning on Monday afternoon.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

Taffeta expresses its fashion feeling in print. Nearly every other Summer fabric has had its satiny silk crepe, chiffon, the entire world of textile materials and now taffeta. Certainly there can be no argument with the version of the style story told by the pink, warp, taffeta evening frock sketched above. It is perky, smart and perfect in detail.

The gown carefully adheres to the slender silhouette and achieves low skirt fullness by inverted tucks below the hipline. It also gives further security to the late hours that frocks of this type are to be longer not only in back but now taffeta reach the ankle in front.

Weddings

STEWART—WILSON

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was filled to capacity on Friday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, to witness the nuptials of Lily Estella Wilson, adopted daughter of Mrs. L. Jacobson, 414 Russell Street, and Alexander McPhie Stewart, third son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, 510 Wilson Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Smith Patterson. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. G. H. Jacobson, of New Westminster, wore a charming gown of white georgette, the skirt plaited in the long waist effect, with long sleeves and uneven hemline. Her hand-embroidered veil was held in place by a circlet of orange blossoms and fell in soft folds over her gown, forming a train. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. She was attended by Miss Gertrude Jacobson, of New Westminster, wearing a frock of pink georgette and satin made with high waistline and tiered skirt, which fell to her ankles at the back, and nubale hat of the same shade. She carried a sheaf of pink gladioli and carnations. Little Miss Rusty Maynard was flower girl, wearing a frilled frock of blue taffeta and bandeau of gold leaves. She carried a basket of yellow gladioli and fern. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Duncan Stewart, and the ushers were Messrs Frank Kerr and Andrew Pollock. The church had been prettily decorated for the occasion by the young ladies of the Young People's Auxiliary. Mr. Dallamore officiated at the organ and, while the register was been signed, Miss Jean McGowan sank "Because." A reception afterwards followed in the lecture hall of the church, which was prettily decorated in a color scheme of mauve and pink. The young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. G. H. Jacobson, who wore a gown of black georgette and lace over red satin with hat to hat; Mrs. L. Jacobson, in black satin with black hat, and Mrs. Stewart, in black silk with black hat. A three-tiered wedding cake crowned the table, with vases of mauve and pink sweet peas on either side. The following friends of the bride assisted in serving refreshments: the Misses Agda Erikson, Irene Nye, Mary Trowsdale, Edythe Calliner, Rita Rogers, Louise Patterson and Freda Seward. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left for Banff, where the honeymoon will be spent, and on their return will reside at 414 Russell Street. For travelling the bride wore a navy and jade green silk Chine dress with a sand-colored coat, sand fox hat and shoes to match, the gift of the groom. Among the many beautiful gifts received was a standard lamp from the freight and chief departments of the E. & N. Railway, where the bride was formerly employed, the latter gift to the groom was a gold watch chain, the bridesmaids a string of pearls; to the flower girl a purse; to the best man a gold cigarette lighter; to the soloist a scarf. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. H. O. Jacobson, Mr. Lloyd Jacobson, and the Misses Dorothy and Doreen Jacobson, New Westminster; Mr. William Stewart, Vancouver; Misses Agda Erikson and Irene Nye, Portland; Mrs. Clay Wilverton, Port Angeles, and Miss Sweeney, of Bamberton.

CHAPTER VII

For the week-end at Greyhouse I had freed myself from hospital and other engagements, so that I was at liberty to spend the day as I chose; and I confess it was spent partly in sleep. Norse, as appeared later, was busy in finding out what he could with regard to Francis Ballion's financial affairs, checking up the past of Jacob Hasta and of others in the staff at Greyhouse. When I dined at my club that evening, I heard one of the older members, who had known Francis Ballion as a young man, discussing him with gusto; and all he said confirmed my prejudice.

"A gentleman," declared the older member, "that is, in breeding. But a queer stick. Always had a devilish temper. Killed a man once with his bare hands—out West—about a woman. It was put down as self-defence and he got off. Lived free and wild and hard, for all his education. I wouldn't put this past him if it's true."

I had already moved off. My mind felt as a body does, when it has been overtired, sore and inert. I managed to find a corner to myself, and sat smoking.

Just about this time last night, Celia, Eleanor, and I had sat in semi-darkness before the fire in Greyhouse. Only twenty-four hours ago! It seemed incredible.

I wondered how Eleanor was standing the loneliness out there and the siege of memories. If they were grim enough for me, what must they be for her! That night in sleep I heard again the howling of the wind, the hush of footsteps near me, saw a face pale and distorted bending down, and awoke in a cold sweat to the thankfulness of my own room. But, in view of this, Eleanor's courage seemed all the more distinguished.

Norse, Ballion, and I had planned to motor out next morning together for the inquest, which had been set for 11 o'clock; but as Norse wanted some previous talk with Francis Ballion, we arranged to arrive at Greyhouse an hour and a half earlier.

The detective's first words to Carl were a question. "Could you persuade him?"

The other shook his head: "No—he refused."

We drove for a while in silence. It was a bleak November day, with a hint of snow, and my hand felt stiff on the wheel. We were numb in spirits as well as physically, with a small relish, at least, on my part, for what we were about to face—all the less when Norse remarked at length:

"If he holds by his decision, I'm afraid I can't do any more." He alluded to the Western affair, of which he also had heard, and added that Ballion's finances looked queer. "Perhaps I've been wrong," he admitted; "unless something occurs I'll have to put him under arrest this morning."

So we entered the long drive that led up to Greyhouse. It appeared cold and palatial as ever, with its high, stone facade.

I was aware of several men on guard outside. Before going in, Norse called to one, "Well, Rose, everything been all right?"

"Yes, sir. No one has left the house, and no one entered, except Mr. Carl Ballion last night. Reddy reports everything O.K. inside."

But, as it happened, this must have been an earlier statement, for, when the front door had been opened by Hasta, we found Reddy standing in the hall, an anxious look on his face, and staring at the closed doors of the library. Near him stood Eleanor Graham.

"What's wrong?" snapped Norse.

"Nothing, I suppose, sir; but it's locked here, and no one has seen Mr. Ballion this morning."

Norse gave a sharp exclamation. "But did he sleep in that room?"

"Why," interposed Carl, "when I left him at half past eleven, he said he intended to work there until late. And I told Lieutenant Reddy that. He came on duty just as I was going out."

"Your orders," said Reddy, "were to disturb the family as little as possible. I slept for an hour or so on the divan over there; but I sleep like a cat. I don't think he could have left the room without my hearing him."

"But what are you waiting for now?" interrupted Norse. "Why don't you knock?"

"We have, but they're double doors and soundproof."

"Right. I forgot. Well, then, get the keys."

Reddy threw a forlorn glance at Eleanor.

"I'm afraid," she said, and I could see by her eyes that she had slept little, "I'm afraid the keys are locked too we used yesterday. I thought we had left them here on the table, but they're gone. I've looked everywhere." Her lips were trembling.

"Open the doors without them," commanded Norse, in a cold voice—the more expressionless because of excitement. "Get Roose to help you."

But even for experienced men the stout oak proved difficult. It required ten minutes' work before the inner door yielded, and we pressed forward to the threshold. As we did so, I saw Eleanor turn away, and, sinking into a chair, cover her face with her hands.

I understood now Ballion's request for twenty-four hours. He was not the man to let himself be taken or led here and there, subject to others. He was too proud for that.

I remember wondering with a nervous tremor how we should find him, alone in the great, rich room, filled with its treasures. Norse was in front of me. I saw him look right and left. I could feel his tenseness. Then he called suddenly,

"Mr. Ballion!"

We had entered now, and I looked to the left at a vacant desk, then to the right between bookshelves and armor. Norse crossed the room at a bound and gazed along the other side. We followed him. We passed here and there peering, forth and back.

"By heaven," cried Norse at length, "there's no one here. The room's empty!"

We all remained fast for a moment. Then, as my wits returned, I found I was starting at the narrow door in the angle of the wall, and there was pinned against it a square, white sheet.

I pointed, and Norse had already seen, and stood, in front of it. Despite his haste, he detached the paper with instinctive attentiveness, and carried it over to the desk for better light. After a minute, he raised his face, while, it seemed to me, with a frozen anger, and beckoned us.

"I was a fool," he said between thin lips, "a blind theorist. You were right. I'd say you, though, not to touch the paper until I've examined it."

Looking down, I saw a typewritten statement, as follows:

"To whom it may import: On the evening of October 31, about 8 o'clock, I entered Greyhouse secretly, and, having concealed myself until the hour of one, I killed my wife, Celia Ballion, by strangling. Awakened by the light I turned on next to the bed, she half-rose, and, as I stood behind her, there was no difficulty in placing the thong. She died quickly.

"I let myself out by the door upon which this will be fastened. I wish to declare that I was entirely alone and unaided by anyone. The unfortunate lies in her glove and the garrote, due to absent carelessness, having replaced my position hopeless. I have no intention of furnishing the law with more of its rare victims. I take, therefore, the only course remaining, and will cross this threshold for the last time. As regards Celia, I have no outer regret than my failure. It is obvious to any impregnated mind that strength must remain indifferent to ethics.

"I address this statement particularly to the attention of Captain Norse, who will find in it, perhaps, a useful moral."

And the paper was signed: Francis Ballion.

TWO IMPORTANT GOLF EVENTS CARDED NEXT MONTH

Bob Morrison Plays Great Golf to Win Qualifying Honors

Youthful Uplands Club Champion Leads Field in Medal Round for City Title With 139—H. Brynjolfson and Beasley Next

Unloosing a string of birdies and pars, Bob Morrison, for the last two years Uplands Club champion, played two of the greatest rounds of his young career to lead a field of eighty-four divot diggers in the qualifying round of the city golf championship Sunday at the Victoria Golf Club by checking in with a total of 139 over the thirty-six-hole course.

Morrison led his nearest rivals, Harold Brynjolfson and Art Beasley, who were bracketed in second place with 144, by five strokes. The medalist showed the way in the morning round when he came in with a brilliant 68, one stroke under par. He went out in 35 and came home in 33. He continued his brilliant steadiness after lunch and handed in a 71, two over perfect figures, to capture the medal honors. The Uplands champion only had one six on his cards and that was on the first hole on the initial round.

After shooting a 78 in the morning Art Beasley, one of the city's best left-handers, went out in the afternoon with one intention, that of capturing the qualifying round honors. He reached the turn in 38, three under par, with six threes out of the nine holes, a remarkable performance. However, he slipped somewhat on the incoming journey and took 38, to tie with Morrison for the lowest gross score of the day. The remainder part of Beasley's card was that he had nine threes on it, but five fives on the last nine spoilt his chances of cropping the medal.

BRYNJOLFSON CLOSE UP

Two steady rounds of 72 placed Brynjolfson in a tie with Beasley for second place. Clarence Brynjolfson, younger brother of Harold, took third position with a total of 146 and Bill Newcombe was fourth, one stroke back of Brynjolfson. K. C. Allen and the veteran Frank Thomas were well up with scores of 148. Close on their heels came Jack Matson, a strong contender for the crown, with a 149, while Alan Taylor, son of the club's professional and one of the juniors permitted to play, was deadlocked with Harold Linehan and A. V. Price with a 152.

Norman Wallace, Colwood and Macaulay Point club champion, checked in with a 153 and Alex Marling, Jr., another junior, got in the select group with a 154. C. H. Christopher, another school lad, representing Macaulay Club, squeezed in with the qualifiers with two strokes to spare.

TO PLAY OFF

Dr. Westwood, W. H. M. Haldane, C. A. Montgomery, George Prentice, T. L. Swan and Walter Newcombe will play off one or more holes on Friday for the last place.

Alex Watson of the Victoria Golf Club and defending champion, comfortably judged himself in the first thirty-two with a total of 157.

The special prize of a dozen golf balls for the best gross score, donated by Charles P. Todd, president of the Victoria Golf Club, goes to Bob Morrison, the medalist.

THOMPSON HEAD FOOTBALL BODY

Former Manager of Greenshirts Will Guide the Destinies of V. & D.F.L. This Season

WILL TRY TO FORM SECOND DIVISION

Bill Thompson, formerly manager of the Victoria West soccer eleven and a well-known figure in local football circles, was named president of the Victoria and District Football League at the annual meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. last night. Fred Gilbert, secretary of the Referees' Association, was elected secretary. Neither of these was present at last night's meeting.

Tuesday, September 3, was the date set for the closing of entries. Although nothing definite could be ascertained last night, it is a foregone conclusion that the six last year's clubs, Victoria City, Victoria West, Esquimalt, Saanich Thistles, Five Co's and Westholme, will compete again this year. The latter club will play under the name of the Jokers in the season soon to get under way.

The opening date was set for Saturday, September 14.

The matter of forming a second division was discussed and the delegates decided to call for entries for the new loop. The date for the closing of entries will be the same as that of the first division, September 3.

NEW BALL BODY MAY BE FORMED

Up-Island Softball Association Is Mooted to Take Shape Before Start of Next Season

That the forming of an Up-Island softball association may take place before the start of next season was the information received from the Victoria Baseball Association yesterday. The idea was brought up at a gathering of officials of the Nanaimo League and representatives from the Upper Island found following the exhibition game between Victoria West, city champions, and Shell Oil, crack Up-Island aggregation, at Macaulay Stadium. The home squad won after a thrilling encounter, 5-3.

If the scheme mooted by the officials goes through, then the league will be operated throughout the Up-Island sections this Summer will be formed for the Island and provincial play-offs as they will automatically become members of the provincial body.

S.O.S. SOUNDED FOR REFEREES

Shortage of "Whistle Tooters" Is Becoming Serious as the Soccer Season Is About to Open

RECRUITS ARE EAGERLY SOUGHT

It won't be long now before the soccer boys start booting the leather around and getting into shape for the opening of the 1929-30 season. As the date draws near soccer bosses and managers are wondering just where they are going to get the referees. The situation, according to a statement made at the annual meeting of the Victoria and District Football League, is the most serious in the history of the round ball game in this city.

It was pointed out that P. C. Payne and Ralph Alcock, former "shrill tooters," will be unable to officiate this year as they are members of the Lower Island Football Association. Fred Oliver, for a lengthy period secretary of the Referees' Association, it is understood, is through, while P. J. Woodley has left Victoria and taken up his residence in the Old Land. This leaves McMillan and Robb to handle the situation as the 1929-30 season is about to push its nose through the cloud.

The SOS has been sounded and interested referees are asked to get in touch with L. G. Clegg, secretary of the L.F.A., 2626 Blackwood Street.

Rumors State Tacoma Will Be Fourth Team In New Coast League

Local Clubs May Move to More Lucrative Fields This Winter—Local Team Proved Costly to Management Last Year

Although ice hockey will not be in the news spotlight for a couple of months yet, Victoria fans should get ready for an announcement around that time that this city will be without its professional element in the Coast League next Winter. There has been no definite statement from any of the league officials, but unless the most unexpected happens local rinkbirds will get their evening hockey entertainments by the way of Binson-pures or over the radio.

It is a known fact that the Victoria Club cost the local management several thousands of dollars last year and that there isn't a hockey body in the world that is willing to provide amusement when it has to dig down to do so.

As before mentioned, nothing definite has been announced from any of the Coast magnates, but there have been persistent rumors floating around that next year's Coast loop will include four teams: Vancouver, Seattle, Portland and Tacoma.

BUILDING ARENA

With the great success of the Seattle and Vancouver teams last year by the way of gate receipts, it is known that Tacoma interests are willing to take some of the public's money by the way of hockey entertainment, and have accordingly started building an auditorium, so that the Ambulance City's fans may get a glimpse of the rapidly growing game.

Victoria and Portland did not take to the game like Seattle and Vancouver did, after an absence of several years.

Victoria fans saw hockey at its best when Lester Patrick, now manager of the New York Rangers, piloted the Cougars to a world championship and the runner-up place in the two years before the former Pacific Coast League existed to more lucrative fields, and apparently figured that the class of the new league was not good enough. The result was that the gates did not gather in many shekels for the management, and when other teams strengthened Victoria was not in a position to do likewise. A strong amateur team, which won interest honors the year before but which also cost its bankers plenty, appeared also to have its effect.

With the above facts in view, Victoria fans should not be rudely shocked if the announcement in the first paragraph of this article does not come true.

MAX'S MOTHER THINKS SON IS GREAT FIGHTER

Mother of German Heavyweight Tells Scribe That She Did Not Object to Him Becoming Ringman

WANTS HIM TO WIN TITLE THEN QUIT

By MARVINO VAUGHAN
(North American Newspaper Alliance)

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Frau Amanda Schmeling, mother of Max Germany's finest idol, thinks her son is the greatest fighter in the world, but she has never seen a fight and doesn't want to. And when and if he wins the world's championship, she wants him to quit. Frau Schmeling received the writer in her comfortable apartment in a suburb of Berlin once

Max Schmeling known as Steinlitz. It is a six-room flat, with pretty flower boxes in the windows, and tastefully furnished.

Scores of Max's pictures hang on the walls of the living-room. Three or four busts of the fighter compete the ensemble. A key to the City of New York, presented to Schmeling on his first visit to the United States, occupies a prominent place on the mantel.

"Max is a good boy," Frau Schmeling told me. "He has supported me ever since his father died in 1915. We had hard times for two years, but Maxie started to make a good income in 1925, and I have had this ever since. We have a maid, a telephone and a radio."

The radio is an expensive one, and Frau Schmeling's face beamed as she pointed to the set over which she heard a report of Max's fight with Paolino. The broadcast was relayed from Schenectady, N.Y., and was heard perfectly, she said.

"No, I never want to see my son fight," she continued. "I get so nervous when I hear reports of his bouts over the radio that I know I couldn't sit at the ringside and see him hurt. All fighters get hurt, you know, even when they win.

"I think Max will be the real champion because he told me as He said after he whipped Sikko that he would defeat the other fighters in America, and I know it's true, because he said so. Nothing can shake my confidence in him."

OBJECTED TO RING

Though it has been reported that Schmeling's mother objected to his ring activities when he started, she denies it.

"We had nothing but a small income and we needed the money," she admitted. "Now we have everything, more than we need. If Max should win title I will urge him to quit. I want him to settle down, get married and raise a family. There is more in life than money. But I hope he doesn't marry until he has become champion, for family life makes a man soft.

"There is nothing in the story that Max is in love with an American movie actress. He has nothing to do with girls. He told me so himself, and I believe him. He interests are boxing, good music, books, tennis and golf. He has never tasted wine, liquor or beer. You have no beer in America?

"And your correspondent, who has tasted many of the various substitutes known as home brew, must be fully admitted that she was right.

Mrs. Schmeling is a sturdy-built woman. She says Max's father was a big, strong man, but she asserts that Max gets what we in America call "muscle" from her side of the family.

Max has no sisters and only one brother. A sister was killed in a motorcycle accident several years ago while riding with Max. Tears rolled down the mother's face as she told of the tragedy. The brother lives at home with his mother and occupies the same bedroom as Max.

This bedroom is more like the boudoir of a woman than the sleeping quarters of a fighter. It is done in pink, with all the feminine in harmony. Like the living-room, it is filled with trophies of Max's public prowess. A candy pig, given Max the night he won the European middleweight from the Italian, Boanglio, occupies the place of honor on the dresser. It is his favorite mascot.

Great Mistake to Consider a Ball Team Pennant Winner as Cleveland Did at Commencement of Last Season, Big League Umpire Says

By GEORGE MORIARTY
Big League Umpire
(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance)

"Betting in a new crop of spitball pitchers," is getting to be a familiar cry around the major league circuits. Several managers and players who, when I have discussed the matter frankly in favor the return of the spitter, particularly to curb the high pressure hitting which has been keeping the spotlight with their bludgeons. As high grade pitching material is scarce in the minors it is thought a new harvest of damp-ball flingers should reinforce their ranks and it is argued that they would fend ready aim in the majors if the ban were lifted.

GEORGE GRIMES

The ban on spitball pitching in the big leagues resulted from a trick pitching epidemic. Russell Ford, who pitched for the New York Yankees twenty years ago, started the fresh ball craze among pitchers.

Accidentally, Ford discovered that a ball with a slightly roughened surface would sail off a straight line when delivered, after he had experimented with emery paper hidden in his pocket of his glove. Ford brought his famous emery ball into vogue. Then followed Chooks with the shine ball and the sailor. Soon batters faced a new distraction. That was before the introduction of the freaky ball, and those deliveries were banned by a rule which forbids the application of foreign substances to a ball.

The admiration of the modern ball player is aroused by the skill of the few remaining spitball pitchers. They have always been effective. Look over the slim list still in harness: Faber, Quinn, Grimes and Mitchell. They are all unusually clever above the sars.

SHOCKER WAS GOOD

Urban Shocker, who died a year ago, was one of the great spitball artists because he successfully mixed a slow ball with his wet delivery. Shocker also slowed up his spitter, and thus used it as a change of pace. Stanley Coveleski, who left the majors last season, made hundreds of batters swing for exercise. Burleigh Grimes, Pittsburgh ace, has subdued National League sluggers all year with spitters.

A trained spitball arm is not capable of propelling a sharp curve. However, a sharp breaking spitter is more easily controlled than an explosive curve. Therefore it is possible that many pitchers who possess only an ordinary curve could adapt themselves to the spitter with success.

In some quarters the umpires have been held responsible for throwing out so many apparently good balls during the progress of a game. That is the wrong impression. The umpires are willing to keep damaged balls in play, but such balls said and do weird things in the vicinity of the plate. These peculiarities cannot be observed from the stands. When the ball sails in an unnatural manner the batter invariably asks the umpire to put another ball into play. Also, conscientious pitchers refuse to pitch a damaged ball.

In 1920 Ray Chapman, star shortstop for Cleveland, was killed with a pitched ball. There was an unfounded rumor that the ball was rough and sailed into Chapman.

No arbiter wants to be held responsible for injury resulting from a roughened ball, and as long as the pitchers and batters object to using them the umpire must throw them out. The cover of the lively ball cannot retain its smooth quality after it has been rifled against the concrete stands or fences.

Bushy Graham Gets Call Over Gregorio

"Why," said a young lady who was watching a game of golf for the first time, "is the man with the club shouting Fore—"

Her companion, another lady, answered: "I suppose that is the number of times he has hit the ball. And don't he seem annoyed over it too?"

REVOLUTION IS LOOKED FOR IN LOCOMOTIVES

Test Now Being Made of Oil-Electric-Driven Engines Carefully Watched by Railway Experts

ADOPT NEW MEANS OF PROPULSION

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—A new development in railroad motive power, oil-electric locomotive No. 9000, of the Canadian National Railways, left here today, hauling a train carrying railroad and public men and news writers on her inaugural run, which will finish at the Toronto Exhibition station. The largest and most powerful engine of her kind in the world, the locomotive was evolved from the oil-electric passenger-cars which the railway developed four years ago.

The test is being watched by mechanical experts on both sides of the international boundary. Some predict that it will revolutionize railway operations throughout the world. It is the adaptation of the oil-electric car to the locomotive. Fuel-oil being used to operate the engine which drives the electric generator, and the power from the latter furnishes the energy to drive the propulsion motors. Its perfection is due largely to R. J. Hungerford, vice-president of operations and construction, of the Canadian National system, and C. E. Brooks, chief of motive power.

Engine 9000 consists of two units and weighs 210 tons when fully equipped. It is ninety-four feet long, and each unit contains essentially of an oil engine generator set mounted on the locomotive frame, boiler equipment for steam heating of passenger coaches, four traction motors for propelling the locomotive, air brake equipment, and other auxiliary equipment.

Cheer him back to school on a C·C·M·

A C. C. M. would fill him full of new vim. He would be glad to go back to school if he rode a C. C. M. It would be a "joy ride", instead of a grind. It would improve his health and clear his brain.

Every boy should have a bicycle. C.C.M. Bicycles are best for boys because they are the swiftest and they stand the hardest kind of usage. They are built to stand it.

There are C.C.M. models built specially for growing boys. The curved top bar allows the saddle to sit down low enough to let a pair of short legs reach the pedals. As they get longer the saddle can be raised. By the time he is full grown he has a "grown-up" bicycle.

It's a strong, well-made wheel, Dad, and a dandy to ride. Don't you think he deserves to ride back to school on a C. C. M. this Fall?

VIVID PICTURE ATTRACTS CROWD

"The Desert Song," Glittering Vitaphone Operetta Pleases Throngs at Dominion

"It will be a long time before the screen has another one like it." Such was the verdict of last night's audiences that packed the Dominion Theatre, where "The Desert Song," which is the very first operetta to be transferred to the screen in its entirety had its first showing in Victoria. One might well think that the first effort would be in the nature of an experiment, but Warner Brothers had already brought the Vitaphone to such a state of perfection that they apparently encountered no difficulty in transferring "The Desert Song," with all its dialogue and all its songs and all its magnificent choruses, to the screen. Their confidence born of long experience in the talking picture field, was justified. The production was clamorously applauded.

The all-star cast of "The Desert Song," which was directed by Roy Del Ruth, includes John Boles, Carlotta King, Louise Fazenda, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Johnny Arthur, Marie Wells, Jack Pratt, Edward Martindel, Robert E. Guzman, Otto Hoffman, and many others.

... in the world. Some of her best pieces were collected in Flanders shortly before the war. There are some delicately lovely pieces from Ireland and a lace cap from Spain that the actress plans on wearing in a picture the first time opportunity presents.

COLUMBIA THEATRE Louis Wolheim and Phyllis Haver form a sort of a beauty and the beast combination in Miss Haver's new Pathe starring feature, "The Shady Lady," which is now showing at the Columbia Theatre. Wolheim was borrowed from Caddo Productions to play the heavy in this feature, which is said to be one of the most dramatic picture productions of the current screen season. Edward H. Griffith directed "The Shady Lady," and Havana is the locale of the story.

CAPITOL THEATRE "Scandal," a tense "sound" and "talkie" drama of high society, with Laura La Plante in the leading role, opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. The story, which was adapted from a Cosmopolitan Magazine story by Adela Rogers St. Johns, builds up to a tremendous climax. There were moments last night when the audience seemed to hold its breath, waiting for the final outcome of situations so convincingly real as to bring tears to the eyes of many. The court scenes are particularly intense, and Wesley Ruggles, the director for this Universal picture, has cleverly handled each situation.

FLAPPER FILMED WITH HER LOVER

Marion Nixon Stars in Vimful Comedy With Charles Rogers at Coliseum

"Red Lips," Universal's sparkling story of college life, is the current attraction at the Coliseum Theatre. Charles Rogers and Marian Nixon are the co-starring team.

This is the first appearance together of the youthful film couple, and they make an admirable pair of lovers. Their romance in this vimful comedy has been called a "song of youth." Miss Nixon plays the role of a carmined flapper, her first part in which she is not a "nice girl." Rogers is an unsophisticated college freshman.

"Red Lips" is an amazingly frank picture, but told by Director Melville Brown with understanding. He portrays youth as few directors have been able to do, it is said. He makes it vivid and real and yet he never exaggerates.

A cast of Hollywood beauties and juveniles supports Rogers and Miss Nixon. Hayden Stevenson, coach of the "Collegians," is again a coach in "Red Lips." He is the only member of the cast who is more than twenty-five.

CANADIAN BOYS EN ROUTE HOME

Contingent of Scouts Who Went to Great Jamboree Given Big Send-Off on Departure

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

GLASGOW, Aug. 26.—A hearty send-off was accorded 180 Canadian Boy Scouts when they sailed for Canada on board the steamer Letitia, after attending the world jamboree of Boy Scouts at Birkenhead, England.

The boys were in charge of John A. Stiles, assistant chief commissioner in Canada.

Lord Blythewood, president of the Glasgow Boy Scouts' Association, standing under the Letitia's bridge, addressed the boys who swarmed to every accessible place at the end of the boat, some of the more adventurous climbing to the funnel stays above the heads of their comrades.

Lord Blythewood spoke of the Scouts as "ambassadors of Empire who could do more than any statesman to maintain and foster the peace of the world." Baillie Clark, senior magistrate, represented the city of Glasgow.

Tells Dyspeptics What to Eat

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary

It is a well-known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree, and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comfort means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by making Bisurated Magnesia your daily after eating protection.—(Advt.)

RAPID PROGRESS IS MADE ON BOTH NURSES' HOMES

Rapid progress has been made during the last fortnight upon the nurses' homes of the Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals, and Mr. C. E. Watkins, the architect for both these buildings, reports that the roof of the home at the Jubilee Hospital has now been completed, while work will now be started on the cornice of the building at St. Joseph's Hospital, and the roof will be finished in about one week's time.

CFCT

Immediately following the announcing of the closing market quotations, the popular nightly "Sunset" programme will commence. Mendelssohn, one of the world's greatest masters, wrote volumes of music, and the Sunset Trio have chosen, as their opening number tonight, his brilliant concert overture, "Fingal's Cave," or "The Hebrides." This will be followed by a collection of gems from Gilbert & Sullivan's most famous comic opera, "The Mikado." Tschakoff's ery "Cossack Revels" will contrast with the slow, beautiful melody of Edward Grieg's "Solveig's Song." Radio listeners, whose receiving sets are tuned to the wave-length of CFCT, Victoria's radio station, will also enjoy a selection of popular melodies from "The Fortune Teller," one of Victor Herbert's many delightful comic operas. Two exquisite compositions from the pen of Chaminade, "Scarf Dance" and "Variations," are programmed on tonight's orchestral hour, while the pleasing combination of violin, 'cello and piano will close this evening's hour with the Sunset Broadcasters by playing a lively march by Louis Ganne, "Marche Tartare."

Lovers of good dance music will enjoy CFCT's last broadcast tonight, when "mikes" will be in play in the south ballroom of the Crystal Garden. The orchestra will entertain patrons of the dance from 11 o'clock until the mystic hour of midnight, after which CFCT, "The Canadian Radio Station Farthest West," will sign off.

ANSWER TO SUNDAY'S PUZZLE

VAST HOST OF PEOPLE HAVE LEFT EUROPE

Emigration for Period From 1820 to 1924 Is Estimated by Bureau of Statistics at 55,500,000

GENEVA DIRECTOR DIRECTS INQUIRY

European emigration to non-European countries totaled 55,500,000 between 1820 and 1924, and of that number approximately 50,000,000 emigrants departed from Europe between 1846 and 1924. These totals were revealed in a study of migration just made public by the National Bureau of Economic Research of the United States.

The study, based on world-wide statistical sources, many of which hitherto have been untouched, has been embodied in "International Migrations," prepared in two sections. The first section is now complete, according to a recent announcement by G. R. Stahl, executive secretary of the bureau.

In announcing some of the high points of the study, Mr. Stahl disclosed that in the first half of the last century the largest emigration was from Great Britain and Germany, while that from France, the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland was a small fraction of the whole. The flow of emigration in that period was from mother countries to territories where racial connections similar to those of the present European emigrants and their American relatives were found to have existed.

MASS MOVEMENT BEGAN IN '40s

Emigration did not become a mass movement until the '40s, due primarily to the fact that until that time legal obstacles to emigration had not been removed, it was found.

"Increased capitalistic production through the use of machinery and cheap raw material from overseas involved everywhere an increase in population which provided labor for overseas territories," the report continued.

"The number of emigrants was increased by the impoverishment of agriculture. Other causes were political disturbances in Europe, improvements in transportation, exploitation of natural wealth overseas, abolition of the slave trade and stimulation of emigration to colonies by the British Government."

The predominance of British emigration is stressed. About 19,000,000 persons left the British Isles between 1815 and 1924, including the great Irish movement. German emigration, which was next in volume to that from Great Britain in the first half of the century, was reduced to a minimum after 1850.

The later shift of European emigration to the Southern and Eastern countries of Europe, notably Italy, Austria, Hungary and Russia, was emphasized, attention being called to the "recruiting devices" of the steamship lines as a factor in causing the movement, up to the time it began to decline as the result of anti-immigration laws in this country.

HEADED STUDY

The study was made under direction of Dr. Imre Ferenczi, of the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland. Professor Walter F. Willcox, of the research staff of the National Bureau of Economic Research, was a collaborator of Dr. Ferenczi and is editor of International Migrations. Routine investigations were made through contacts of the International Labor Office with Government agencies throughout the world, and in addition eight study tours were made to London, Paris, Strassburg, Berlin, Hamburg, Bremen, Vienna and Budapest, making use of public offices, libraries, museums and other institutions having useful data. Lists of Colonial emigrant permits dating as far back as 1500 and coming down to 1834, were found in the archives of Seville. Legislation concerning the control of travel by sea from England to Scotland and dating back as far as 1389, was studied.

Old newspaper files supplied to the investigators information concerning the 1816-17 emigration wave that swept through the port of Amsterdam after the Dutch archives were found barren of any information on the subject.

The principal object of the inquiry, according to Dr. Ferenczi, was to discover the statistics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries up to 1924. Neither totals nor even reliable estimates of the total migration during earlier centuries could be determined, inasmuch as detailed statistical information dates back not much further than a century ago.

DISEASE SMITTEN

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—The native Indian race is being ravaged by tuberculosis. Nearly ten Indians died from that disease in 1928 for every white man. Tuberculosis was responsible for 730 deaths per 100,000 Indians in British Columbia.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics index figure of 81.4 is a slight improvement over the preceding year.

Bulls Were Again in Control When Market Resumed but Profit-Taking Lowered Prices

SEVERAL ISSUES REACH NEW LEVEL

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Under a concerted bull campaign on the stock market was resumed today, only to run into an increasingly heavy storm of profit-taking, in which was added a deluge of new selling in the last hour of trading, when about half of the day's previous advance was lost, and many losses dropped below the last week's closing quotations.

Call money was in plentiful supply, at 5 per cent. Such prominent issues as United States Steel, American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Columbia Gas, Johns Manville, Oil-lists and National Biscuit, closed with net losses of from 1 to 5 points. Westinghouse Electric 9 and General Electric 7 points. Case Threshing dropped 25 points and a few stocks reached new highs for the year.

Atchison, Main York Central and Union Pacific mounted about 3 to 5 points to within a point or so of their best price, but lost some of their gains in the final dealings. A.T. National Telephone and Western Union rose to new high levels but also lost some of their advances. Allied Chemical and Brooklyn Union Gas reached new high ground in wide gains, reflecting merger prospects. Allied Chemical advanced 12 points to a new peak at 248, but closed at 241 1-2. Other strong spots included Eastman Kodak, National Dairy Products, F. G. Shattuck and Woolworth, all of which reached record levels.

Merchandising shares were generally strong.

Coppers were heavily bought on prospects of higher metal prices.

Foreign exchanges were irregular with sterling again under pressure, the demand rate dropping to $4.84 3-16 Sterling cables, however, were fairly steady at $4.86 3-32. Stock privilege telephone securities soared to record price levels today contrary to the general trend in the listed bond market. Bonds without speculative features continued to be depressed.

CHICAGO MART IS DEPRESSED

SEVERAL FACTORS COMBINE TO HAVE A WEAKENING INFLUENCE

Good Bally Is Fairly Well Maintained—Scattered Rains Cause Free Corn Selling

(B.C. Bond Corporation, Ltd.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Our market is depressed during the morning by the weakness in Liverpool, continued disappointing statistics on the report situation and fear of a substantial increase in the visible supply. Selling was precipitated by weakness at Winnipeg, which market was under the influence of poor export call, congested position at Port Arthur and Eastern points and the reports of better yield than expected in Saskatchewan.

When it was indicated that the increase in the visible would not be as long as expected, there was some short covering and a good rally resulted. Posting of the figures showed an increase of about half a million, which was a considerable decline for the amounts reported for the past several weeks.

The recovery, which was very good, all things considered, was partially maintained and showed good support was forthcoming on declines. The United Kingdom was reported to be receiving heavy shipments direct with a demand from the Continent. Here crop prospects are improving and this, with heavy Argentine shipments, doubtless accounts for the poor export demand. Our visible showed a net increase of 1,000,000 bushels, which was a considerable decline for the amounts reported for the past several weeks.

Corn—Scattered rains over parts of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri caused rather free selling of corn and forced the market below the bid level. Crop damage reports continued from some sections, especially Illinois, where it is now only 5,390,000, which is about one-half of the amount on hand a year ago. Chicago would seem recent to its own fundamentals of price movements. Oats made only a partial recovery from selling due to continued fair receipts, while demand was slow. Shipments over the week end were more than a million bushels.

DIAMOND CUTS YET MORE ORE

REPORT OF SENSATIONAL STRIKE SENDS AMULET TO FRONT AGAIN

Stock Makes Net Gain at Toronto of Forty Cents—Nickel Next Prominent

(Bonner, Perlson & Co.)

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Another sensational cutting of ore by diamond drilling operations sent Amulet into the front again today on the Standard Stock Exchange, with buyers quick to respond to an offering. Stock was in demand up to $3.50 and then eased to $3.32, a net gain of 40 cents.

In price proportion, International Nickel was the second prominent issue on the board, gaining nearly two points before receding to the $55.25 mark, an advance of 85 cents. Noranda was off nearly a point, while Mcintyre was firm around $15. Falconbridge Nickel and Bidgway Basin shaded a degree.

Teck Hughes moved up around $7.30. While there was some confusion as to whether the added liquidation in this stock had dried up, its performance in the last few sessions is significant of improved market conditions. In all consideration of stocks it should be borne in mind that Teck Hughes in its physical aspect is one of the soundest propositions among the speculative investments.

In oils Sterling Pacific made a run to $2.60 from a fraction of a points of the gain. While several oils were substantially softer, a good tone prevailed.

INFLATION — 6%
NORMAL PRICE AVERAGE
DEFLATION — 0%

Business thermometer.

Price advances from 1921 to the present have not represented inflation, they merely eliminated the maladjustment of prices between agricultural and non-agricultural commodities.

A study of the United States Bureau of Labor wholesale commodity price index number by the Business Committee on Economic Research indicates that prior to the war prices could rise or fall about 6 per cent from normal, without any inflation or deflation.

The average price level of the index from 1923 to 1924, figured with 1913 as a base, was 151. However those years were abnormal because agricultural prices averaged only 143 as compared with 162 for the non-agricultural group.

In 1924, though, for the first time since 1920, agricultural and non-agricultural prices came together at 153. Consequently there might be more justification in assuming that 153 represents the normal line and not 151.

Applying the 6 per cent increase we find that according to past experience inflation should begin at 160 or 167, depending upon which price level is assumed to be normal.

Rails to Be Mart Feature Says Whitney

(Brannon, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Whitney, of the Wall Street Financial Service, today says: The selling which some into the market in the last hour or 2 sellers was entirely unexplainable in the same cause which brought about a similar tendency at the close of the week. This simply being the result of profits being advanced so radically in the period of a little over two weeks. The realizing of the rediscount rate, that has been kept so low for years, has been hard to resist. In so far as the rediscount rate, this profit taking has simply used up some of the irregularity of Tuesday's market, which would normally appear tomorrow.

Incidentally we have approached the rediscount rate, the point at which call money showed no [illegible] a few sessions left, think we are later on going to be able to refer back to this particular month-end as perhaps the nearest we have passed, through in a year or so. What is probably of greatest importance in the immediate outlook is the outstanding performance given by a considerable number of the rails which resumed their advance yesterday. Look for the balance of the group to join in tomorrow and the group as a unit, to feature the market in the course of the next few days. Closely behind them look for the oils and coppers to provide secondary strength. In the general industrial list we may probably have a moderate recession here and there and it has been this thought that has led to the comparatively restricted number of recommendations in that section of the market.

Expect particularly striking advances this week in Atchison, Union Pacific, Nickel Plate, which is as a new high, but going much higher, Lackawanna is still a purchase on weak spots. Expect Pennsylvania, New Haven and St. Paul preferred, which has given us its expected new high price but is still a buy under 70. Erie, which should be bought under 90 for an advance across 100, is a good speculative purchase, which is scheduled for a move to new high ground.

The oils are digesting their rapid rise of last week and will not regain their previous strength, pending complete this process and resume their advance. The American has duplicated its previous top price to enter the fourth territory, and I believe this issue, along with the Standards of New York and New Jersey constitute the real class of the list. They should be purchased during what remains of this period of digestion.

In the coppers, Anaconda has already had enough of a reaction from yesterday's top to warrant new buying. So the commitments in this group consist of this issue along with American Smelting, Kennecott and Miami. In the utilities, the only new commitment to be suggested at the present time is Public Service of New Jersey. Elsewhere, continue to buy American Interrelational, cover in the Standard Oils and likewise Remington Rand. Westinghouse Pumps under 100, and United Drugs as an additional security in the industrials. This latter stock is ready to emerge from its present accumulation and should be bought in a range between 113-116 for the 20 points I believe it will make rather rapidly.

BULLS REMAIN ON AGGRESSIVE

Profit-Taking Absorbed Without Important Setback—Buying Activities Diverted

(Brannon, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Trading in the opening session of the week maintained the recent aggressive bullish characteristics.

Profit-taking came into Steel, American Can and other industrial leaders for the account of traders anticipating a technical reaction. However offerings of this kind were absorbed without important setback and operations for the rise turned in other fields.

Buying activities were diverted into the rails on an active scale. Sweeping advances took place in Atchison, New York Central, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and other representative issues.

Development of strength in the railroad department, fulfills the expectation of experienced observers, and materially enhances confidence in the fundamental soundness of the general market.

Several utilities also were notably buoyant, with American Telephone & Telegraph in urgent demand. Latter pushed through 300 for the first time in history, advancing briskly once that level had been surmounted.

Pacific Gas & Electric and Pacific Lighting were conspicuous for gains reflecting prospects for a fuller utilities consolidation in the Pacific Coast with these two companies as the nucleus.

PRICES BREAK AT WINNIPEG

LIVERPOOL'S PRONOUNCED WEAKNESS CAUSES FURTHER LIQUIDATION

No Feature to the Cash Market—Harvesting Making Splendid Headway

(Brannon, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—Wheat: Pronounced weakness in Liverpool caused further liquidation of long wheat and some speculative selling during the first part of today's session, resulting in prices breaking 3 cents under the close Saturday.

There was some buying and commission house buying on a scale down and a rather sharp upturn in the late trade in Chicago caused local shorts to cover, and the market rected over 1 cent from the bottom. However, the support was not very aggressive and the tone was weak most of the day, although the selling pressure was light during the first half.

Export business was not in evidence, there being no acceptances over the week, and apparently foreign buyers are still in position to take their time in buying. There was no feature to the cash market, the demand being poor, offerings light and spreads about unchanged. Saturday there was a good demand for flour as fair, but nothing doing in exports.

The weather continued fine throughout Western Canada over the week-end with warm temperatures. Harvesting is making splendid headway in Saskatchewan, and both yields and grades are appearing better than anticipated.

Country marketings of wheat on Saturday were about 1,000,000 as compared with 134,196 last year. Wheat needs more than anything else more active buying of cash grain for forward delivery, and such a demand appears believe wheat is in sale on the hard specs.

Coarse grains: There was very little feature to these markets and outside of a little domestic demand for oats, there was nothing doing. Export sales in all grains being nil.

Flax: Very little going on. No feature.

The Bond Market

We would draw the attention of investors to the present undervalued position of the Security Market.

In the opinion of leading economists and market students the trend of bond prices will be towards steadily higher levels.

The "firming up" of Government Bond prices, particularly long term issues, is significant of a forward movement in the general bond market. There are many seasoned bonds at very low levels.

Those Who Come and Go at Provincial Museum

By H. W. HART

Attracted to Victoria by the Provincial Museum, which is located in this city, 128 students of the Summer School of the University of Oregon, broke their voyage to Alaska in order to visit the local institution, and add to their store of knowledge regarding the natural and ethnological history of North America.

The Summer School, which holds its lectures in a floating classroom, arrived in the Ss. Queen, a veteran excursion steamer of the 'eighties. This old vessel, which is setting no speed record, was chartered by the governors of the university and dispatched with their blessing and orders to make one call only in British Columbia, and that at Victoria.

The fame of the Provincial Museum has traveled far and wide and its educational value was recognized by the faculty of the southern seat of learning when the decision to include this city in the tour was made. From Victoria the students proceeded direct to Alaska, but before leaving they expressed the opinion that a study of natural and ethnological history of the continent would be incomplete without the inclusion of the Provincial Museum and its wonderful collection of specimens, many of which can be seen in no other institution in the world.

This and many other visits of a like nature have a direct bearing upon the prosperity of Victoria. For, while the museum is the magnet which attracts visitors, during their stay, bring revenue to many business men of the city and increase the volume of tourist trade. Were this fact fully appreciated the institution would be recognized as a valuable asset and receive greater attention in publicity pamphlets.

The Oregon students made a close and thorough examination of the exhibits, and the building was kept open for an extra hour to enable them to take full advantage of the educational facilities. The variety of subjects, which make up the natural history of the province, came as a surprise to them. Of course, their studies had prepared them for much that they saw, but they did not hesitate to admit that the few hours spent studying actual specimens were of greater value than years of classroom study.

EDUCATIONAL VALUE

This generous recognition of the valuable educational exhibit caused the temporary assistant to think for once in his life, and he wondered why it is that greater advantage is not taken of the collection by local educational authorities. True, an occasional school will send one or two grades, but their visits are few and far between.

It may be that the privilege is made too easy. There is no ship to charter or other heavy expenses to be incurred, and the time spent for a visit would not greatly interfere with the general school work. And, perhaps, children would grasp the subject quicker and easier by studying actual specimens than by forming erroneous impressions from listening to verbal descriptions.

If children were brought to the museum for nature study lessons they would not make the absurd mistakes which many adults, who lacked the opportunity of Victoria children, do when trying to identify the better known mammals of the province.

The museum is a public place and all sorts and conditions of people are among those who come and go. Infants of tender years, whose wishes are not consulted before they are carried in, occasionally voice a protest in volume of sound far beyond the safety limit of any human structure.

Audible protests of this nature, if determined and sustained, are displeasing to other visitors and embarrassing for the attendants who are charged with the duty of preserving peace and decorum. But devotion to duty and the protection of life insurance policies furnish the attendants with the requisite courage to cause parents to bring their offspring to a state of subjection in accordance with the rules and regulations which govern the conduct of visitors to the museum.

Of course, the regular attendant was enjoying his weekly half-holiday, leaving the temporary assistant to assume the onerous duties of that high office, when the latest insurrection broke out. It was not a minor case, but one of such an aggravated nature that a record of the restraint shown by the temporary assistant in handling it will be preserved in the annals of the institution as a model of tact, diplomacy and forbearance.

A TERRIFIC HOWL

The building was crowded by the contents of three large sight-seeing cars and an excursion steamer, which unloaded their passengers at the same time. This sudden influx kept the "T.A" busy acting as traffic "cop," and he was directing the streams of humanity along the recognized routes and straightening out occasional jams in front of popular exhibits, when a terrific howl rent the air.

It was like a conglomeration of all the nerve-wrecking sounds employed by motorists to strike terror to the hearts of inoffensive pedestrians, and as persistent as taxes and other objectionable measures which governing bodies resort to in order to rob "death of its sting and grave of its victory."

Something had to be done, although the "T.A." showed little inclination for doing it. But while he was procrastinating the infant apparently decided to make an effort to establish new records for both volume and endurance. This stirred the "T.A" to action, and the speed with which he covered the ground which separated him from the record seeker would not shame the fastest sprinter in the Dominion.

"Madam," he gasped, "this is terrible."

"It sure is," was the reply, "it's driving me crazy. Here, hold him for a minute!"

Before the astonished "T.A" realized the mother's intention, he was holding a morsel of humanity which instead of appreciating the honor conferred upon it, showed resentment by increasing its yells until all records were left out of sight.

Then the mother hastily opened a bag which was hanging on her arm, and delved into it, turning over a miscellaneous assortment of tiny garments, rubber and celluloid toys, bananas and other eatables, and pounced upon a bottle which was three parts full of a milky substance. Plunging the business end into the cavity from whence the yells were emitted, she said: "Now stop that or you'l feel my hand!"

To the relief of the "T.A" the lady collected the baby, and whether it was due to the threat of "laying on of hands," attention to the business of extracting nourishment from the bottle, or escape from the arms of its erstwhile custodian, he cared nothing. But for some one or more reasons the storm subsided, and a situation of extreme embarrassment ended without any fresh contenders for further records.

With the return of peace, the "T.A" faced the future with firmness akin to obstinacy. He determined there should be no recurrence during the remainder of his term of office. And in consultation with the director it was decided that next time there is a case of a lady, a baby and a crisis, the "T.A." shall have power to conscript the stenographer for service until the crisis is past or the parties to it have departed from the building.

Health and Diet Advice

FACTORY CANNED FOODS

Next to canned milk, the various forms of canned tomatoes are next in importance. The main reasons tomatoes are canned in such large numbers is that they grow abundantly, they are easy to pack, and easy to sterilize on account of their acid content. They also may be used to prepare a great many dishes, such as soups and stews, served plain, or as a sauce, used in salads and for catsups. They are the cheapest vegetables in cans, and have been found to have a great deal of value because of their vitamin content.

Tomatoes sometimes have a bad reputation with dyspeptics because of the fact that they are used in wrong combinations with other foods, principally with starches. Because of their large amount of acid they do not combine well at any time with starchy foods, but may be used freely with protein meals or taken by themselves as any other acid fruit, for they are really an acid fruit growing on a vine or small bush.

Next to tomatoes more peas are canned than any other vegetable or fruit. The peas are shelled in a modern cannery without having the pods picked from the vine. The vines are pulled and the whole thing taken to the canneries where machines shell them. They are then cold packed, that is, put into the can raw and then cooked. The vines are picked early in the morning, rushed to the factory, and the peas are in the cans in a few minutes.

The great advantage that a factory has over a home cannery is having the machinery which does away with the laborious shelling and picking of the pods which has to be done on the farm by hand.

Helen of Troy probably enjoyed eating peas, as we find dried peas in some of the ruins of Troy. They have also been recently found in Egyptian tombs.

Corn is the next most popular vegetable. It is put up in three styles. The "Maine" style means that the tops of the kernals are cut off with a knife, then the cob is scraped to get the pulp off afterwards. The result is a creamy mixture. The "Maryland" style means that the whole kernal is cut close to the cob. Corn is also packed with several whole ears being put into the can and the whole ears of corn cooked.

Two modern developments of the canning industry are vegetable and fruit salads consisting of mixture all ready to serve as combination salads.

THE IDEAL RESORT

I've found a place for Summerside, where no one pulls on any side, where no head waiter coldly jeers, or views you with his cynic sneers, because your style of manners is not wholly like the style that's his.

I've found a place where no one sits upon the porch and rocks and knits and pulls your name and fame apart with calm, consummate cruel art, and leaves you cold and stark and dead, your reputation but a shred.

I've found a place where when you rise, and think a bath a thing to prize, 'tis possible to get a tub where you can splash and splash and scrub, with no one at the door to shout, "Say, hurry up in there! Come out!"

I've found a place where one may stay and not a single tip to pay; where gramophones aren't heard at all, and no one warbles in the hall. And not an extra cent at that—my own beloved city flat.—Judge.

United States Salmon Troller Olympus M-2168 Held at Bamfield Under Fisheries Act

ALLEGED TO HAVE FISHED ILLEGALLY

VANCOUVER, Aug. 26.—For fishing within the three-mile limit off Pachena Point, on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, the American salmon troller Olympus M. 2168, of Seattle, was taken into custody Sunday by the fisheries patrol boat Givenchy, under command of Capt. A. M. Henderson, according to reports to Major J. A. Motherwell, supervisor of fisheries here.

The vessel and her owners, John Peleness and James Trakosis, were handed over to the customs officer at Bamfield, awaiting further orders from the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

According to the report of Captain Henderson, the United States vessel is alleged to have been taken while fishing inside the boundary.

The usual procedure will mean prosecution of charges in the Admiralty Court.

OAXACA IN ROLE OF FISH PACKER

Is to Establish Fish Reduction Plant at Magdalena Bay, Mexico

Ss. Oaxaca, which left Esquimalt on Friday afternoon for Seattle, has been chartered by Hobb Brothers, of Vancouver, to a group of wealthy Los Angeles financiers who have secured a concession to establish a fish reduction plant at Magdalena Bay, Mexico, according to Capt. J. W. Hobbs.

After loading machinery for the plant, the vessel will proceed south. She has been painted and outfitted by Yarrows and will convey fish products and a limited number of passengers between Magdalena Bay and Los Angeles.

Captain Hobbs' yacht, Lady Stimson, the largest pleasure craft on the Pacific Coast, left for Vancouver on Sunday. She was originally built for an Austrian grand duke by imported Scottish shipbuilders, and once had the Austrian coat-of-arms on her figurehead. Under United States registry she later made several cruises to the Mediterranean.

Captain Hobbs, who served his time in the Royal Flying Corps, was instrumental in helping the Government select Jericho Beach as a seaplane base.

Millionaire Dies in Speedboat Crash

THE bow of the lake boat Thousand Islander shows the gaping hole torn when it collided with the speedboat, Giggle, in the St. Lawrence River. Above is Charles Lipe, Syracuse millionaire, who was the owner of the Giggle, and who met death with his wife, below, either by drowning or injuries received in the crash. Their bodies have not been recovered.

ALICE COMPLETES SKAGWAY SERVICE

Princess Charlotte Has Two Sailings and Princess Louise One Before Summer Season Ends

The Princess Alice, when she arrives this morning as an extra night steamer from Vancouver, will complete her Alaska schedule for 1929 and will resume activity in the triangular service.

She has made eight sailings in this Summer schedule, which will terminate with the return of the Princess Charlotte to this port on September 9. The Princess Louise has one more sailing and the Princess Charlotte two more in the announced schedule.

Four ships have been used this year in making the twenty-five sailings, twenty-two of which are complete. The Princess Adelaide filled in for the Princess Charlotte, which enabled the latter to be repaired, thus completing the list with the three ships already named.

Business has been good in that service, but it is not expected any record will be broken. As the gateway to the Yukon, the route is very popular with tourists, who have a wonderful marine cruise prior to the crossing of the White Pass by rail to Whitehorse and the remarkable 460-mile trip down the Lewes and Yukon rivers to Dawson.

Prospect Point Eddies Bad for Ship Navigators

VANCOUVER, Aug. 26.—Work in cutting Calamity Spit off the north shore of First Narrows is to be pressed by the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange, which was responsible for the Government commencing the work some time ago.

During Summer operations the dredging company cut deeply into Prospect Point. The fog signal installed there was put out of commission and the cutting made new and dangerous currents and eddies which have proven of considerable embarrassment to navigators of large and small craft.

ANKLE BROKEN IN CAR SMASH

SAANICH INDIAN WOMAN IS BADLY HURT ON SUNDAY ACCIDENT

Collision Occurs on Island Highway at South Cowichan Tennis Courts Corner

DUNCAN, Aug. 26—Mrs. Louie Pelkey, Indian of Tsawout Reserve, Saanich, is in the King's Daughters' Hospital here suffering with a fractured ankle as a result of an accident, when the car in which she was riding collided with a car driven by Mr. C. F. Smith, of Victoria.

The accident took place about 9 o'clock yesterday morning on the Island Highway, about one mile south of Kokaiah, at the South Cowichan tennis courts corner. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mrs. Pelkey was the only one that was seriously injured, and she was brought into Duncan and given medical attention.

According to the provincial police, Mr. and Mrs. Louie Pelkey, Indians of East Saanich Indian Reserve, were traveling south on the Island Highway, in a touring car with Indian Alex Lemo as driver of the car, when they met at the turn of the road at the tennis court corner, the sedan car driven by Mr. C. F. Smith, of Victoria, with Mrs. Smith, John Oldham, Mrs. Oldham and Master Ronald Oldham, of Linden Avenue, Victoria.

SMALL BOY SAVES LIFE OF COMRADE

NANAIMO, Aug. 26.—Great heroism was shown a few days ago by Lyle Thompson, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson, Pitawilliam Street, when he jumped into the water fully clothed and saved the life of his pal, Ray Park, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Parks, from drowning in what is known as "The Park Rangers' Swimming Hole," which is located on the Mill Stream Park.

It appears the two boys, with several companions, went for a swim down to the swimming hole, and Lyle having finished with his "dip," began dressing when Ray took a header from the diving board, striking the water in such a way as to render him unconscious, and as the by-standers were watching him go down for the third time, Lyle jumped in and brought him to the landing. There he applied first aid.

HAVE CLOSE CALL WHEN CAR SKIDS

SOOKE, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Troya, her small daughter, Vivian, and Mrs. Florence Greenwood escaped with minor injuries when the car in which they were riding overturned on the Sooke Road near the seventeen-Mile post on Friday morning. The accident was due to a skid on the oily road following a shower. Had the car not hit a wire fence it would have rolled down thirty or forty feet. Mrs. Troya, though badly shaken, drove the car into town after it was righted.

Mr. Bomford Elected as Chairman of New Board

Consolidated Board for Plantagenet School District Comes Into Being, With Experienced Trustees—Four Districts Affected

COBBLE HILL, Aug. 26.—As the result of a meeting of ratepayers of the school districts of the Bebch School, Cobble Hill, Mill Bay and Sylvania, held in the schoolhouse on Saturday night consolidation of these schools is an accomplished fact.

Some objection was voiced by ratepayers, particularly in the Mill Bay area, who had not been present at the annual meeting when the consolidation question was voted on.

The following trustees were elected for the consolidated area, the first four being the secretaries of the late school boards: Messrs. H. E. Pawdry, E. W. Bomford, J. A. Barry, George Frayne and W. Aladorf.

Mr. G. A. Cheeke, who acted as chairman of the meeting, was appointed another. The schoolhouse was filled to capacity and nearly fifty people cast their votes. At a subsequent meeting of the trustees Mr. E. W. Bomford was elected chairman, and Mr. W. Aladorf secretary of the new board.

Declarer's plan of play is frequently influenced by what must be an adverse hidden side component and therefore side entry for a suit adversely bid. The situation is not at all uncommon where Declarer cannot possibly go game should he fail to drive out this marked side entry while still holding a stopper in the suit opened, but can go game should he do so. The above hand is a good example of this situation.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Auction: Following South's original bid of one Spade, West bids one No Trump and all pass.

Contract: As in Auction, South starts with one Spade, which West overcalls with two No Trumps. It is rare indeed that this situation arises where a player following an original suit bid holds the sound requirements for an overcall of two No Trumps. The situation presented is one in which practically all of the high card values are marked as passed in the two hands of Dealer and West. Consequently, West, with an original two No Trumps bid (had Dealer passed) should make such overcall of Dealer's one Spade opening bid holding stoppers in that suit, so force a response from partner should he hold any supporting values, whatsoever. North passing East with fitting intermediate values in the shape of two Queens and a Jack-Ten bids three No Trumps as his best response to West's demand.

THE PLAY

North opens the Ten of Spades, the top of three cards or the suit named by partner which South lets run to Declarer's Jack. As previously stated, the Declarer's plan of play is governed primarily by the count of his own and Dummy's hands. Starting with the suit opened, Declarer carrouses all positive winners two Spades, three Diamonds and three Club tricks, or eight in all, before his remaining stopper in Spades is driven out, that is always assuming that the Club finesse may lose. Consequently Declarer's problem is how best to assure the needed ninth trick for game. This must of course be the establishment of a Heart trick in case the Club finesse loses.

If the Club finesse loses another Spade will be led and Declarer's Ace driven out, following which it will be all too late to establish a Heart trick. Consequently, Declarer's plan of play is to establish his Heart trick at once, particularly as the Ace is practically marked as held by South to justify his original Spade bid. Following this, the Declarer will pass a second round of Spades and win with the third, in order that he may safely finesse the Club. So played, Declarer must make his contract.
